WOMAN SUFFRAGE INEVITABLE IN UNITED STATES, CLARK'S OPINION

Three Hundred Petitions From Thirty-Eight States Sent to Washington—Vice-President Marshall Not Quite Convinced—Bryan Seeks Place of Refuge

Washington, June 27.—Speaker Clark today told a delegation of women from the National American Woman's Suffrage association that woman suffrage is as inevitable as the rising of tomorrow's sun.

"For six thousand years," said the speaker, "men have been trying to run the world and some think they have made a bad mess of it. I hope that when you women run it, you'll improve on it. I think woman suffrage is inevitable. The only question you folks have to consider is how to most expeditiously get what you are after. You can get it quicker by the states than by congress."

"In some places there is a great prejudice against woman suffrage. You want to remember one thing, that if you lose the fight you are out for years. Whenever the subject comes up for a vote in Missouri I am going to vote for woman suffrage. This is not because all women are fitted to vote, and I may add that I would not like to say that all men are fitted to vote. If you ever do vote, and I think it is coming certainly, I hope you will vote for the principles and the best men."

The speaker was addressing a group of women from thirty-eight states, who had presented 300 petitions for woman suffrage in the form of resolutions adopted by suffrage organizations and mass meetings at the time of the nation-wide demonstration on May 1. There were also present congressmen, Democrats, Republicans and Progressives, to whom petitions were also presented.

The woman suffrage leaders in the delegation included Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Miss Jane Addams and Mrs. Antoinette Funk of Chicago, Mrs. Helena Gardner, Mrs. Glenna Smith Tinnin and Mrs. Raymond B. Morgan, of Washington.

Vice-President Marshall also received the suffragettes and later petitions to senators were left at the vice-president's office. The suffragettes requested that all petitions be laid before congress before July 1, etc.

Dr. Shaw urged the vice-president to take a more decided stand on the suffrage question because she believed he believed in suffrage.

"But I can't get away from my wife," returned the vice-president, "and I don't want to."

"But you might persuade her if you tried," said Dr. Shaw.

One suffragist who wandered away from the throng about the vice-president's office, fell in with Secretary Bryan on his way to the foreign relations committee. From her earnest gestures, Mr. Bryan had to use some vigorous methods to extricate himself. He finally took refuge in an elevator.

When the senate met, numerous petitions presented by the suffragette delegations were filed by Senators Smoot, Lewis, Oliver, Catron, Townsend, Hoke Smith, Bristow and Liggett.

The suffragette association officials particularly emphasized that they were opposed to militant methods; they were not fighting any party, but were seeking aid for the suffrage cause from individuals of every political faith.

JAPANESE PRESS WANTS LAND LAW SATISFACTION

Urges Wisdom of Taking Action Against the State of California.

Tokio, June 27.—The Japanese press generally expresses indignation at the attitude of the United States in the California anti-alien land controversy as outlined in the correspondence between the two governments recently published. Several of the newspapers insist that a remedy must be found for the insulting situation. The Nichi Nichi is especially violent in its utterances. It condemns what it calls Japan's flattery of America by participating in the Panama-Pacific exposition, and says that instead of doing this Japan should, in view of the United States government's inability to control the states, consider the wisdom of taking action against California in order to obtain satisfaction.

MANY VISITING TEAMS TO SHOOT AT BISLEY

Overseas Challengers Strong; India Sends Several Competitors for Rifle Matches.

London, June 27.—The Bisley meeting will be attended by teams from Australia, Canada and India, and probably Guernsey and South Africa will enter for the Kolarup cup. The Australians and Indians arrived by the last mail steamers. The overseas challengers will be strong this year. The Rangoon volunteers are sending a regimental team of six men while the Bombay Baroda and Central Indian railway volunteers are also strongly represented as well as the Kolar Goldfield volunteers, the Calcutta Rifles and the Nagpur Rifles.

WESTERN TRADE GOOD COMPARED WITH EAST

Trade Report Gives Failures in Canada for Week as Thirty-Three

New York, June 27.—Bradstreet's Review says: Good crops, mixed trade and rather unsatisfactory industrial and manufacturing conditions sum up the week's report.

Good crop reports, with a veritable certainty of a record winter wheat crop plus evidence of growth in trade, both wholesale and retail, in most of the west, all of the northwest, southwest and in parts of the south, strikingly contrast with the very slow pace of industrial operations the country over, and dull business in the east, where additional depression has developed in consequence of the suspension of a large factor in the drygoods trade.

For the week: Failures 230 against 280 last year; wheat exports 5,098,915 bushels, against 4,201,859 last year; bank clearings $2,876,961,000, a loss of 2.6 per cent. from last year.

Dun's Review says: Reports from the principal trade centres continue irregular, but favorable advices outnumber those of the opposite character, especially in agricultural sections. The large drygoods suspension and the disastrous fire in New England were naturally disturbing features late in the week. High temperatures again facilitated the distribution of seasonable merchandise.

This month has witnessed an expansion in demand for iron and steel, yet price concessions are still a feature. The transporting companies are still buying in a conservative manner. There was a decrease of 5.7 per cent. in the gross earnings of railroads reporting for two weeks in June.

Failures this week were 236 against 269 during the same period last year; in Canada 33 against 27 last year.

EXCESSIVE HEAT CAUSES DEATHS OF FIVE PEOPLE

St. Louis, Mo., June 27.—Five deaths from the heat last night and to-day were reported in St. Louis up to noon. The temperature at 11 o'clock this morning was 93 degrees, a rise of three degrees in an hour, and indications were that the mercury would nearly reach the high mark of yesterday, when 101 was recorded. A strong wind, however, served to reduce the suffering from the high temperature.

STORSTAD'S COUNSEL GIVES VIEW ON WRECK

Quebec, June 27.—Either the Empress of Ireland or the Storstad was to blame for the collision which sank the Empress and caused a loss of over 1,000 lives, according to C. S. Haight, counsel for the owners of the collier, in his opening address to-day before the commission which is investigating the disaster. He contended that one ship was to blame, and brushed aside the theory that the accident was due to a misconception, and that both boats were responsible.

KAISER HAS HEARTY LAUGH OVER ARREST OF NAVAL AUTHORITY

Kiel, Germany, June 27.—The Kaiser laughed heartily on hearing of the arrest of Lord Brassey, the British naval authority, on a charge of espionage. The laughter of the emperor was provoked by the incongruity of an ardent advocate of an Anglo-German entente incurring the suspicions of the German police, but he subsequently conveyed an expression of his annoyance to those who were responsible for the blunder.

Lord Brassey was the dinner guest of the Kaiser on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern last night, and doubtless received a graceful apology for the mistake. Lord Brassey treats his arrest as a joke. He was a prisoner only a few minutes.

MERCHANTS COMBINE FOR JULY SALE WEEK

July 2-11 Will Be Notable Days for Shoppers of Victoria and the Island

The days from July 2 to 11 will be notable ones in Victoria for every one who wishes to do any shopping. "Sale week," a magnified repetition of "Dollar Day" is fully expected to create new records for shopping in the capital, for the various merchants of the city have decided to co-operate in a great enterprise, and dry-goods houses, shoe, furniture, and clothing stores will join in making their July sales all fall on the same week instead of, as hitherto, allowing them to be scattered here and there throughout the month.

The advantages are obvious. Every one will be in town with money to spend, and shopper and merchant alike will concentrate on the matter of the moment, time will be saved, money will be saved, temper will be saved. The event will, it is anticipated, far surpass anything of the kind that has ever been held here, both with respect to the amount of goods offered and for the variety of things to be offered.

In the usual course of events furniture dealers do not put on their summer sales until August, but this year they have consented to put on some special sales in July for the sake of combining with the other merchants in the enterprise which is being tried. The merchants promise that the variety of goods offered will be very wide, as they wish to make this a regular "clean-up" sale, and there will be bargains for everybody.

The railway and steamship companies have been approached with the idea of getting special rates fixed for Saturday, July 4, in order to facilitate the coming of shoppers from outside the city. As in the case of the "Dollar Day" items the week's bargains will be specially advertised in the press so that everybody within reach of Victoria may know what the special attractions of the various places will be.

In view of the great numbers of people who came to the city on Dollar Day to augment the crowds of city shoppers, it is expected that sale week will draw to the city an unprecedented number. For Dollar Day there was but one day for the out-of-town people to come, but every shopping day from July 2 to 11 will be a separate magnet. The total number coming to Victoria is likely to be a very large one.

To meet the wishes of this great crowd which will swell the crowds of Victorians, the merchants are making big preparations. They are determined that no shopper will leave unsatisfied or dissatisfied, and the result will be an unequalled variety of goods at bargain prices. No matter from what part of the island, from what part of the city or suburbs the shopper comes he will find something to interest him. Victoria has amply proved that it is the logical shopping centre of Vancouver island, and the merchants promise that its reputation in this direction will be enhanced by the offerings during sale week.

The plan of having the July sales concentrated in one week is a new one in this city, but, having the memory of the great success of the smaller experiment, dollar day, in mind, the merchants feel that it will move with a great swing from the first hour the stores are opened on the starting day. Besides giving the city shopper very unusual opportunities for bargain buying, sale week will yield to those who live in the country roundabout the opportunity of renewing acquaintances in Victoria while, at the same time, gathering desired selections of articles to take home.

BELIEVES MAN WAS DEAD WHEN CAR WAS STRUCK

Long Beach, Cal., June 27.—Half an hour after he had told his wife that he left prepared to die at any time, G. W. Clark, a county road foreman, a sufferer from heart trouble, lay dead to-day among the wreckage of his automobile which had been hit by an electric car. The motorman of the car said it appeared to him that Clark was dead before his machine was hit. The automobile, he declared, was steering erratically and the man on the seat was motionless.

CONFIDENCE ON MEETING OF MEXICANS NOT GENERAL; FAILURE FULLY EXPECTED

Optimism of President Wilson Continues That Peace for Whole of Mexico Will Be Result of Niagara Conference

Washington, June 27.—President Wilson early to-day received a lengthy message from the American delegates at Niagara Falls, and officials close to the executive expressed the opinion that a meeting between the Huerta and constitutionalist representatives was practically assured.

The message received to-day is said to have reported the results of a conference between the American delegates and Minister Naon. While it is estimated in some quarters that an informal conference between the opposing Mexican factions will terminate in failure, it was made clear that President Wilson is viewing the eventual outcome of the Niagara negotiations optimistically.

The state department to-day was notified through the Brazilian embassy that General Huerta was willing to have Vice-Consul Silliman return to his post at Saltillo. The request to Huerta to agree to the return of the American consul whom his troops imprisoned and threatened with death to a territory over which he now has no control, was merely a formality to preserve the good faith of the United States in respect of a promise it made when it secured the release of Silliman from his precarious position. The constitutionalists now entirely control Saltillo and the surrounding territory.

THE LATE ED. W. COX CANADIAN FINANCIER EDWARD W. COX, DEAD

Undergoing Treatment in England When Death Occurred Unexpectedly

Toronto, June 27.—E. W. Cox, president of the Canada Life Association company, and one of the most prominent financiers of Canada, died last night at Folkestone, England, whither he had gone for his health.

Gloom pervaded the office of the Canada Life this morning, when the following cablegram announcing Mr. Cox's death, was received from his brother.

"End came quietly at 11 p. m., sailing as soon as possible, H. C. Cox." The news came as a great surprise to all of Mr. Cox's business associates. It was only last Tuesday that he sent the following reassuring message to the company's office.

"Progress slow, but I am told sure—E. W. Cox."

The cause of death is given as a hemorrhage following treatment he was undergoing for throat affection.

The late Edward W. Cox was the son of the late Senator Cox, and was born June 18, 1864. He received his business training under his father, and was a director of the Central Canadian Loan and Savings company, the National Trust company, Western Assurance company; president Imperial Guarantee and Accident company, and general manager and a director of the Canada Life Insurance company.

TEN THOUSAND FOREIGN UNEMPLOYED IN MONTREAL

Situation is Regarded as Serious One; Immigrants by Boatload Brought In.

Montreal, June 26.—Ten thousand able-bodied men are walking the streets in Montreal, unable to obtain employment. The vast majority of them are Bulgarians, Russians and Austrians, comparatively recent arrivals, but there are many from England and Scotland also. These immigrants are being brought in by the boat-load, and the congestion is becoming worse from week to week. The situation is regarded as serious, considering that it is not midsummer yet, and what the autumn and winter will bring forth is a problem that few citizens care to anticipate.

SHIP DRIVEN ASHORE AFTER AN EARTHQUAKE

Matavia, Java, June 27.—The British steamer Kintuck, of the China Mutual Steam Navigation company, reported overdue yesterday, after a violent earthquake in Sumatra, was found by a steamer sent out to search for her. She had been driven ashore in the Straits of Sunda, between Batavia and Sumatra, by heavy seas caused by a submarine disturbance. The Kintuck was crowded with native emigrants.

KING AND QUEEN BOMBARDED WITH SUFFRAGETTE PAMPHLETS IN LONDON

Police Outflanked in Hyde Park by Women Whose Aim Is Good—Members of Militant Party Threaten Scandal and Claim Power Over Cabinet Minister

London, June 27.—London is aroused over an attack made to-day by militant suffragettes on King George and Queen Mary who were bombarded with suffragette pamphlets as they were about to enter Hyde Park. The attack was made by two women who dared the escort of police which surrounded their majesties and hurled their leaflets from close range within the line of guards.

The police were easily circumvented, the women appearing peacefully on the pavement until a moment before the occurrence took place. Suddenly there was a rush and the police guards from Scotland Yard were outflanked and the literature of the militants was showering around the royal personages.

King's Hat and Queen's Parasol Struck.

The aim of the women was direct, a bundle of the papers struck King George on the head knocking his hat to one side. The Queen's parasol caught another shower of pamphlets.

The police seized the militant women responsible for the attack and carried them away. The women resisted and struggled violently, but were borne off screaming.

TOO MUCH PLEASURE FOR AMERICAN CHILDREN

Mrs. Young Says Foreign Scholars Are Ahead in Schools of the United States.

Chicago, June 27.—Children of foreign born parents here excel American children in school work because American children are permitted too many outside pleasures, it was stated to-day by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of Chicago schools. The condition was revealed by a survey just completed of Chicago schools.

"American children are devoted to too many outside attractions which their parents seem unable to curtail," said Mrs. Young. "They monopolize their strength and attention and as a result there is a large proportion of overgrown boys and girls in the eighth grades in the American districts."

THIRD VIOLENT STORM CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE

Water in Streets of Lacrosse Four Feet High; Other Sections Experience Floods.

Chicago, June 27.—Large sections of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa were early to-day devastated by the third violent storm of the week. Water ran from two to four feet deep in the streets of Lacrosse, Wis., and practically all the railroads in the vicinity experienced severe washouts. At New Albin and Lansing, Ia., the rivers overflowed their banks, and fields for miles were buried under sand and mud. The business district of Mandan, N. D., was to-day covered with water three feet deep in many places, and residents fearing another cloudburst, moved to places of safety.

CHURCH PARTY IS NOT OPPOSED TO CARRANZA

Monterey, Mex., June 26.—Via Laredo, Tex., June 27.—A delegation of churchmen visited General Carranza to-day to bring him the assurances that the church party of Mexico was not opposed to him.

The delegation was sent by the Archbishop of Mexico City and the Bishop of Saltillo. They declared only the Spanish members of the party opposed Carranza and the constitutionalist movement.

General Carranza's day was given over almost entirely to an elaborate programme of amusement. He attended a luncheon at noon, races and other sports in the afternoon, a reception and a ball in the evening.

WILLIAMS' REPORT ON ALBANIA IS AWAITED

Officials of United States Amazed Over Action Taken by Minister to Greece.

Washington, June 27.—Administration officials, particularly those in the state department, are interested, and mildly amazed over reports from abroad that George Fred Williams, of Boston, minister to Greece, has officially condemned, in emphatic terms, the present government in Albania. No such report has reached the state department. Inasmuch as some time ago the department investigated a published report that Mr. Williams had offered his services on behalf of the United States as a mediator in the Albanian crisis, and found it was repudiated, they are inclined to await the result of an inquiry into the latest story.

STEAMER IS FLOATED.

Hughtown, Scilly Islands, June 27.—The Belgian steamer Gothland which went ashore on the Crime Rocks June 23, while on the way from Montreal to Rotterdam, was refloated to-day.

SUFFRAGETTES HOLD NEW WEAPON OVER HEAD OF MINISTER

London, June 27.—The militant suffragettes are boasting of a complete victory over the government. Not only are there no prosecutions against the subscribers to the militants' fund, but the headquarters in King's Way, which were raided and closed by the police a few weeks ago, have once more been opened and the militants there are openly organizing their attacks on people and property.

The militants say it is not altogether the wealth and social influence of the subscribers to the organization which has brought about the victory over the government. One of the strongest supporters of militancy and one of the largest subscribers to the fund claims to know enough about a certain member of the cabinet to drive him out of public life and she says she is resolved to do it if she attempts to confiscate the militants' fund or close their headquarters are continued.

It is well known that every time the militants' headquarters are raided and closed this woman calls on the cabinet member in question and a few days later the headquarters are opened again.

BUCKINGHAM PALACE PROTECTION SYSTEM WILL BE OVERHAULED

London, June 27.—When the king leaves London the whole system of protection at Buckingham Palace will be overhauled. There is, of course, no need for panic, but recent events have shown that the palace is by no means as secure as it ought to be. Not only has a man got inside, but the militants have smashed a window, and others got across the yards before they were captured. The household, and Scotland Yard as well, have the removal of the court with profound relief.

TEN YEARS IN PRISON FOR SWINDLING FARMER

Los Angeles, June 27.—James R. Rymer, leader of a crowd of bunco men which operated among tourists in Southern California two years ago was sentenced to-day to ten years in San Quentin prison. He was convicted in the criminal department of the superior court several days ago of having swindled G. P. Fries, a farmer from Illinois, out of $5,400.

FOURTH SHAMROCK AGAIN SUCCESSFUL

Torquay, Eng., June 27.—Shamrock IV, Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger for the America's cup, had another successful trial to-day. She beat the old Shamrock by four minutes fifty-second seconds, corrected time, over a 30-mile course in a brisk breeze.

SENATORS WANT TO KNOW HOW NEWS LEAKED OUT

Washington, June 27.—How such complete reports of the proceedings of the senate foreign relations committee supposed to be secret, on the pending Nicaraguan and Columbian treaties, got into the newspapers is about to be investigated. At a meeting to-day Chairman Stone was directed to ask the senate to authorize examination of senators and newspaper correspondents to find the source of the information given to the public.

STEAMERS COLLIDE.

Kingsford, Ont., June 27.—The steamer Alexandria, on her way from Kingston to Charlottetown, collided on the lake about two o'clock this morning with the steamer Querida, loaded with pulpwood. The two did not come together very hard and suffered but slight damage. Both steamers were able to proceed on their way.

BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT COMMENCED IN TURKEY

Movement is Said to Be Far-Seeing Plan of Rejuvenation

Constantinople, June 27.—The Boy Scout movement has been initiated here with the swearing in of the troop leaders before Enver Pasha, who, it is understood, is to be made the Bash-bogh, or chief scout of Turkey.

The movement is part of a far-seeing plan to rejuvenate Turkey. On the patriotic side, the members, with the support of the young Turks, will try to purge the language of foreign words which have corrupted the Turkish of the border into more or less of a jargon. On the military and civic side, the government hopes not only to popularize army service among the educated classes but to develop initiative and flexibility among the people so as to compete more favorably with western peoples.

It is significant that in the oath taken by the boys the Arabic word for God, "Allah," has yielded to the Turkish "Tengri." All names used in the organization, such as "lady," "scouts," and "Olmak Begs for 'leaders,' are Turkish. The word for leader in official use has heretofore been "bey."

The young Turks, and many of the older men, believe that the country's decline has been largely due to Persian and Byzantine influences. They hope to teach the youth to remember the racial origin of the people who once came near subduing Europe.

The Price of Neglect

When a property owner dies without a valid will, the legal formalities connected with the settling of his estate are complicated.

First, an application has to be made to the court for the appointment of an administrator. This administrator, if a private person, has to furnish bonds at the cost of the estate.

Then, every time a parcel of the real estate has to be dealt with, a fresh application to the court must be made at the cost of the estate.

All this money loss can be avoided by the simple expedient of making a will. Let us assist you in making yours. Our service is free of charge.

ALBANIA SUFFERS BY TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT

Williams Report Praises Dutch and Advises Removal of Prince William

Athens, June 27.—George F. Williams, American minister to Greece, yesterday sent to the newspaper a report of his investigations in Albania, which country he visited recently. In his report Mr. Williams says that he saw the insurgent leader, Zographia, and placed himself at the disposal of the international commission of control, which, however, gave him no reply. Mr. Williams says he considers conditions in Albania anarchical, and declares the present regime impracticable owing to antagonistic rivalries. He appeals to the powers to create a neutral state with an essentially local government.

The report denounces as a horrible crime, what the powers are doing in Albania. It does not even spare the Prince of Weld, saying of him: "I found a prince calling himself a king with no powers, no territory and no subjects except his wife and children." Elsewhere in the report, Mr. Williams says: "I have uncovered at Durazzo an epochal scandal of anarchy, incompetence, hypocrisy and murder. My first effort was to find the Albanian government. I found none, except six warships, and they were silent."

"I took opinions of the London agreement. Every one agreed from its plain reading that it created no government, except one of armed force from abroad. Five ostensible governments were in sight: first, the six great powers with all the power; second, the commission with control of the civil administration and finances; third, the Dutch gendarmes with control of the military; fourth, the prince without any powers remaining; fifth, the ministry with powers."

"Each one of these governments was fighting with every other, save the first, which apparently is so discordant within itself that it has abandoned all the rest to their fate."

The report as published, highly praises the Dutch officers as the only sincere men in the whole of Durazzo, accuses the Albanian government of having plunged Albania into the throes of civil and religious war, and appeals to Europe to remove the Prince of Weld and the international commission and to substitute a system of rational government.

CARRANZA GETS REPORT ON DEATH OF BENTON

Complaint at Mexico City of Constitutional Attitude to Catholic Church.

Laredo, June 27.—The commission appointed by General Carranza to investigate the death of William H. Benton, an Englishman, and Gustavus Bauch, an American, both of whom, it was asserted, were executed, presented its report in each case to General Carranza yesterday. The result of the investigation was not made public.

Mexico City, June 27.—Navarrete, archbishop of Linares, and the Most Rev. Francisco Orozco Jimenez, archbishop of Guadalupe, accompanied by the French charge d'affaires, called at the Brazilian legation yesterday and held a long conference with Minister Cardozo d'Oliveria regarding what they termed the hostile attitude of the constitutionalists toward the Catholic church.

The Brazilian minister will send the statements of the archbishops to the state department at Washington, which is expected to exercise its influence in preventing a continuation of the constitutionalists' alleged anti-religion crusade.

TOELESS SHOES NEW FAD NOW IN LONDON

London, June 27.—The toeless shoe for afternoon and evening wear and to be worn with or without stockings is the latest novelty for women to appear in the London shops.

The new design is of sandal form with high French heels and exposes glimpses of the sides of the foot and toes. They are also made in a wide range of colors with a view to matching the gowns.

So far the new shoe has not yet made its appearance in the street or the fashionable tea rooms.

GLORIOUS HAIR

Always Attracts—Use Parisian Sage. Thin or Faded Hair Becomes Abundant and Radiant With Life.

Girls and women of all ages want to be charming, beautiful and attractive—it's their birthright—but unsightly, thin and lifeless hair destroys half the beauty of a pretty face.

If your hair is not attractive, is falling out, streaky, full of dandruff, too dry, or if the scalp itches and burns, don't delay—use Parisian Sage. Rub it well into the scalp. It will go right to the hair roots, nourish them, and stimulate the hair to grow strong and luxuriant. Parisian Sage removes dandruff with one application and cleanses the hair of dirt, dust and excessive oil.

Parisian Sage gives the hair just what is needed to make it soft, fluffy, thick and gloriously radiant. It is sold in fifty cent bottles only by D. E. Campbell, and at all drug and toilet counters. Look for the trade-mark—"The Girl with the Auburn Hair." Accept no substitute.

Aspinall Holds That Third Officer Saxe of Storstad Was to Blame

Quebec, June 27.—Because her wheel was first put to port, and then, without the authority of the officer in charge, put hard-aport when she had steered away, Butler Aspinall, in the course of his address to the Empress of Ireland wreck commission, yesterday, contended that the Storstad was responsible for the disaster on May 28. Mr. Aspinall asked the commission to find that the crew of the Storstad were inaccurate when they claimed the collier did not answer her helm, and reasoned that the change in the course of the vessel on the ported helm took her into the side of the stationary liner at right angles, and at sufficient speed to cause the injuries from which the Empress sank. If no such change had taken place, he argued, the two ships could have passed safely.

Mr. Aspinall further argued that to find the Empress starboarded her helm, as assumed by the Storstad attorneys, would be to charge perjury to Captain Kendall, who had claimed that no alteration took place in the heading of his ship, and that she was stopped like a log in the water, as indicated by the signals heard on the collier.

Mr. Aspinall held that Third Officer Saxe, who, unauthorized, had taken the collier's wheel from the helmsman and put it hard-aport, was the culprit in the case. Saxe's argument that his action did not affect the ship, he claimed, was an attempt to clear himself with his Norwegian clientele.

Mr. Aspinall divided his address into six topics, as follows:

1. Was the Empress of Ireland, on leaving Quebec, in an efficient, seaworthy condition?

2. Was she sufficiently and efficiently manned?

3. Did the C. P. R. take adequate measures to provide sufficient boats, and were there proper drills for them and for closing the watertight doors?

4. Who was to blame for the collision?

5. Did the officers and men on the Empress take all proper measures to save life?

6. What was the cause of the Empress sinking so rapidly?

On the first three points he said evidence given had been in the affirmative. Their had been no evidence that the members of the crew had done other than their duty. The officers, engineers and operators all stood at their posts.

Regarding the question of responsibility for the accident the lawyer said the collision was caused by the porting or hard-aporting of the helm of the other ship. He thought that it was established beyond all doubt that the Storstad did this with steered way upon her. And it was established that the hard-aporting was done without orders from the captain of the ship. The C. P. R. had claimed that its vessel had lost steerage way and was like a log in the water.

Topic 6, said Mr. Aspinall, was, why did the Empress founder so quickly after the collision? The best answer to that question was the evidence of Mr. Hillhouse. The ship had been designed to float with two compartments flooded. Her side had been torn out and a torrent of water had rushed in on one side. Had the compartments been filled evenly she would have floated. This gave her the great initial list. The weight of the Storstad helped to drag her over, and there was the possibility that one of the boilers had been disturbed.

Mr. Aspinall concluded his three-hour address with the following words: "I would like to thank Mr. Haight, on behalf of myself and the British bar, for the courtesy and consideration extended to me by him, and also to express my appreciation of the assistance received from my Canadian colleagues."

Chief Justice Macleod, who had been acting on the commission with Lord Mersey and Sir Adolph Routhier, will leave with the Canadian and British assessors on Sunday night for Montreal, and will on Monday make an examination of the damaged bows of the Storstad.

GOVERNOR WOULD PLACE TROOPS CLOSE TO BUTTE

Washington, June 27.—Governor Stewart, of Montana, has asked that United States troops be transferred from Fort Vancouver, Wash., to Fort Missoula, in order to be in readiness in case of further trouble at Butte.

In support of the governor's request for the transfer of troops, Senator Myers, of Montana, called at the White House. He said conditions in Butte were unsettled and further outbreaks were apt to occur at any time. There are no federal troops in Montana, he said, and in the event of serious rioting it would take too long to bring them from Fort Vancouver for them to be of any service.

President Wilson took the request under consideration and later took it up at the cabinet meeting.

AMERICAN BATTLESHIPS MAY VISIT PUGET SOUND

Event Probable When Fleet Leads International Naval Parade Through Panama Canal in March.

Washington, June 27.—Secretary Daniels in a statement today announced that the ships of the Atlantic battle fleet which will lead the international naval parade out of Hampton roads for the opening of the Panama canal next March would return from the Pacific coast to Atlantic waters after participating in the Panama-Pacific exposition.

The statement was issued with reference to the navy department's plans regarding the forthcoming exposition which had been misconstrued as an announcement that the fleet would be sent to the Pacific coast and remain there for a long time.

"It is possible that a division of four ships will take advantage of this occasion to visit Honolulu, and that another division will visit Puget Sound," says the statement. "The fleet will then return to the Atlantic coast."

ALL MEN AT INQUEST SEARCHED FOR ARMS

Butte, Mont., June 27.—The inquest over Ernest J. Noy, who was shot down in front of the miners' union hall Tuesday night in the riot between the factions of metal miners began today. More than fifteen witnesses have been subpoenaed.

Before the inquest began, Sheriff Delacord ordered every man in the coroner's office to leave the room. Then the sheriff stationed two deputies at the door and searched every man who entered for arms. None were found.

COLUMBIA WON.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 27.—In a thrilling four-mile triangular struggle with Pennsylvania and Cornell, the Columbia university eight-oared crew won by a scant length the premier race of the twentieth annual regatta of the Inter-Collegiate Rowing association on the Highland course yesterday. The official times of the crews as they finished were as follows: Columbia 19.37 4-5, Pennsylvania 19.41, Cornell 19.44 1-5, Syracuse 19.59 2-5, Washington 20.01 3-5, Wisconsin 20.20.

CANAL TERMINALS ARE REGULAR CALL PORTS

Dredges at Cucaracha Making Good Time Against Sliding Earth

Panama, June 27.—The canal terminals at Balboa and Cristobal have now become regular ports of call for several steamship lines. Interruption of the Tehuantepec railway route across southern Mexico drove considerable shipping to these ports, but even now, with the Tehuantepec service re-established there are many boats which continue to call at Balboa and Cristobal for transfer of cargo across the isthmus. The American-Hawaiian Steamship company has gone back to the Mexican ports, but only until the canal is ready for regular use. The Elder & Frye company, however, which has hitherto had only an occasional service between Liverpool and Cristobal, has now increased its service and is running regular steamships, and a Norwegian line of tramp steamers call regularly, while on the west coast the Salvadorian Railway Steamship line has been diverted from Mexican ports to Balboa.

It is understood also that steamers of a new Japanese line will begin service to Balboa soon.

The Goethals Bean.

Prof. Henry Pettier, of the Panama department of agriculture, has discovered a new species belonging to the natural order of leguminosae, or the bean family, on which he has conferred the name Goethalsia isthmica, to perpetuate the name of the canal builder in botany.

Col. Goethals has had a number of children named after him, but this is his first honor of the botanical order. The leguminosae family, incidentally, knows no limit. Before Prof. Pettier's identification of this new member it already had upwards of 7,000 species.

Dredges Making Time.

Although the rainy season has been on for more than a month, the saturation of the earth has not increased the Cucaracha slide which the dredges have been racing to overcome. It is estimated that the dirt is now being removed twice as fast as it slides in the channel, and that a level of rest for the slide may soon be reached. The depth of the channel is now 35 feet and with a width of more than 200 feet it was more than sufficient to accommodate the Panama railroad steamship Alliance, of 4,000 tons, which was the first ocean liner to pass through the canal without mishap. Even a 10,000-ton ship would have no difficulty, but the canal is not yet ready for the bigger warships.

BURIED EGYPTIAN CITY IS FOUND BY GARSTANG

Two Palaces, Baths, Trees and Dwellings Uncovered in Nile Valley.

London, June 27.—Recent exploration in the Nile valley has resulted in the discovery of a buried Egyptian city as well preserved as Pompeii, according to the Rev. Professor A. H. Sayce, the famous Egyptologist, in an address at the Royal society. The discovery was made by Professor Garstang, investigating at Meroe. Walls fifteen feet thick surrounded a royal city containing two palaces, public baths, gymnasiums, streets and private dwellings. Trees set in pits lined with brick bordered the streets, and walls, quays and landing stages were built along the riverbank. This city was the centre of the iron industry of the time, and the slag from the smelting furnaces show that enough metal was worked there to supply the whole of northern Africa.

An observatory at the bottom of an underground bathing establishment, found by Professor Garstang, is of interest to modern science, as its walls were covered with astronomical calculations.

LA SALLE DEPOSITORS WILL ALL GET MONEY

Grand Jury Inquiry of Chicago Bank Affairs to Be Held in July.

Chicago, June 27.—The federal grand jury inquiry into the conduct of the LaSalle Street Trust & Savings Bank while it was a national institution was set today for July 13, it was announced at the office of the United States district attorney.

Depositors of the four small state banks in the city which were affiliated with the LaSalle street bank and which closed at the same time as the main Lorimer-Munday institution, will all be paid in full. It was made known today by Daniel V. Harkin, state bank examiner.

The vault of the LaSalle street bank was scheduled to be opened today by the receiver. It has been closed since it was sealed by Harkin when he ordered the bank to suspend. In the vault are about $40,000 in currency, it is said, and about the same sum in memoranda of cash withdrawn by Lorimer and Munday on their personal marker slips.

STATUE OF CARNEGIE UNVEILED IN SCOTLAND

Dumfries, Scotland, June 27.—A statue of Andrew Carnegie was unveiled today in Pittencrief, one of the city parks. The park was presented to the municipality in 1903 by Mr. Carnegie together with an endowment of $2,500,000.

A feature of the day's exercises was the singing by a choir of 500 voices, accompanied by a band of the anthem, "Let Us Now Praise Famous Men."

NO PAY FOR TEACHERS IN BI-LINGUAL CASE

Hearing Adjourned for Production of Information From Education Department

Ottawa, June 27.—The bi-lingual case before Mr. Justice Lennox was adjourned yesterday until such time as the statistics being prepared by the provincial department of education are ready. Accordingly no definite date could be fixed for the case to be resumed and argued.

Before the adjournment, A. C. Macmaster, acting for the defence, asked that an order be made allowing the school board to pay the teachers for their services up to date. Of the bi-lingual teachers, twenty were not qualified, since their permits had not been renewed. In addition the plaintiffs claim that the other teachers in the bi-lingual schools are not qualified, because they have not complied with the regulation to teach only English in their forms, accordingly all the teachers in the bi-lingual schools, it is contention of the plaintiff, are disqualified except those in the first forms. Mr. Macmaster argued that it would be a hardship to keep from these teachers their pay from the time the injunction was applied for, some three months ago. It was not the quarrel of the teachers. They were not responsible for what the board had done and should not be kept from their pay.

Mr. Tilley, acting for the plaintiffs, opposed any such order on the ground that they had taken a more or less active part in the trouble in some of the schools, and it would be unwise to interfere with the injunction.

The judge held that he would not interfere with the injunction at this time and consequently the teachers could not be paid. He said he understood that some good friends had advanced them loans and they were in no real hardship. However, while he made no order, he pointed out that the injunction did not cover the teachers in the Irish schools, and if their money was held back they could take means for collecting it.

The remarks of the judge would indicate that the chief fight will be to prove whether the regulation complained of which requires the English language to be the language of communication in all the higher classes is constitutional or not.

ROOSEVELT MUST REST IS ORDER OF PHYSICIAN

Ex-President Says Campaign Will End in Four Months and Cannot Follow Advice.

Oyster Bay, L. I., June 27.—Four months of absolute rest has been prescribed for Col. Roosevelt by his physician, who informed him that he was suffering from an enlargement of the spleen and a loss of vitality as a result of the malarial fever he contracted in the South American jungles. "But in four months the campaign will be over," the colonel said today. Consequently, he added, he considered it an impossibility for him to follow his physician's advice.

Col. Roosevelt has abandoned his campaign trip across the continent, which had been arranged tentatively for September. He also telegraphed to Pittsburgh that he would make only one speech there on Tuesday night. Two had been arranged.

GIRL DIES SOON AFTER ACCIDENT ON STREET

Vancouver, June 27.—At 10 o'clock last night in the General hospital a little girl named Kathleen Dooley died as a result of having been knocked down by an automobile on Hastings street a few hours earlier in the evening. Traffic was in a congested state at the place where the accident occurred, and it was while she was attempting to cross the street that an automobile driven by William O'Brien knocked her down. Mr. O'Brien stopped, and with others did everything possible to alleviate the girl's sufferings. It was recognized, however, that her condition was very serious, and she was taken to the General hospital. She lingered until 10 o'clock last night, when the end came. A number of eyewitnesses said that the affair was accidental.

RAILROAD STRIKE VOTE TO BE KNOWN IN JULY

Cleveland, Ohio, June 27.—Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said today that the result of the strike vote by the engineers and firemen on ninety-eight railroads west of Chicago will be known some time between July 10 and 14. It is a secret ballot, he said, and there is no indication at present as to the result.

The man asked for increased wages, shorter hours and better working conditions, and the strike vote came when the railroads refused the demands.

PHYSICIANS PLAN TO EDUCATE THE PUBLIC

Campaign to Spread Medical Information to Be Undertaken in America.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 27.—Education of the public in medical matters in order to prolong life is the supreme effort of the American Medical Association during the coming year, according to a statement today by Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, the newly-elected president, at the close of the convention.

"During the coming year," said Dr. Vaughan, "we shall spend our time and money in education. Conditions have changed. Once it was simply a matter of the physician's duty to his patients. The field has broadened. The physician must now go to the public."

WOMAN IS CRUSHED TO DEATH BY WAGON LOAD

Ellensburg, Wash., June 27.—Mrs. E. M. Sheppard was crushed to death beneath a wagon load of wood late yesterday. She was going from the family homestead in the Umatum with her son, H. Lemery, when the wagon upon which she was riding became overbalanced and pinned her underneath. She was badly injured and died in a few minutes while her son struggled to remove the load from her body.

SCHOOL OF WHALES SEEN OFF NEW YORK HARBOR

Sandy Hook, N. Y., June 27.—Capt. Thomas Keys, of the tug Lamont, reported today that a school of whales was in the vicinity of the Scotland lightship off the Hook. One whale, he said, was a hundred feet in length and came up spouting close alongside the Lamont. Seldom are whales seen so close to New York harbor.

DOMINION DAY.

will please regulate their orders

LEAN AND FAT YEARS.

The Colonist quotes an authority on economics who demonstrates by references to history, ancient and modern, that fat and lean years alternate, and that the usual duration of the recurring periods is seven years. We really did not think the prospects were quite so dismal as that. We remember reading about the historic famine in Egypt and the regions thereabout and the foreboding action of Joseph which resulted so profitably to himself and in the physical salvation of his brethren.
But there is just as much corn in Canada as ever there was, and we indulge the hope that the famine will not continue for quite seven years.
Fortunately we have something substantial upon which to base an anticipation of better things. We had fifteen years of wise, perhaps we would be justified in saying providential, rule in Canada, during which period there was neither famine nor anything approaching such an affliction. Which proves that there is nothing in the alternating lean and fat years theory given wisdom and understanding in the administration of affairs. True, the present government, which succeeded to power in a moment of aberration on the part of the people, possesses none of these attributes, but there will be an opportunity for making a change long before the expiration of the period of leanness which our contemporary anticipates. We shall have a change, the "interests" we have taken a leaf out of the book of Joseph, cornered the corn and raised the price of living, will be "put where they belong," and prosperity once more will abound throughout the land.

MAN AND HIS PLANET.

The June number of the Empire Review contains an interesting article on the distribution of the races. The writer estimates the habitable land surface of the globe at 51,500,000 square miles, with a total population of 1,750,000,000. Asia with islands has 17,000,000 square miles and a population of 975,000,000. Africa comes next in size with 11,500,000 square miles and a population of 137,000,000. The area of North America with islands is 8,300,000, and its population is 133,000-000. South America has an area of 7,625,000 and a population of 53,000,000.
Europe's area is 3,675,000 and its population is 445,000,000, while the figures for Australasia are 3,400,000 and 7,000,000 respectively. The density of population in Europe is more than twice that of Asia.

Politically the human race is distributed in the following proportions:

Dominions.	Sq. Miles.	Population.
British.....	11,500,000	445,000,000
Russian.....	8,700,000	175,000,000
Latin American.....	8,400,000	80,000,000
French.....	4,745,000	80,000,000
Chinese.....	4,275,000	435,000,000
German.....	3,705,000	115,000,000
Belgian.....	2,225,000	80,000,000
Portuguese.....	825,000	23,000,000
Netherlands.....	195,000	15,500,000
Italian.....	700,000	36,000,000
Turkish.....	445,000	23,000,000
Spanish.....	525,000	20,000,000
Japanese.....	382,000	70,000,000
Austro-Hungarian.....	261,000	56,000,000

The density of population on the above basis is greatest in Japan, where there are 267 people to the square mile.
It is next largest in Austria-Hungary, with 191 people to the square mile. In the Chinese division it is 102 while the British aggregation works out at 39 people to the square mile, which approximates fairly closely to the average density of the whole world. As a matter of fact, however, although the proportion of population to area for the Chinese empire shows 102 people to the square mile, this division really is the most densely peopled of all the large political aggregations because of the existence in its boundaries of immense tracts of sterile land where there are but few people. The population of China proper, estimated at 420,000,000, is spread over an area of 1,550,000 square miles, consequently the average density is as high as 280 against 267 for the Japanese empire. British India has an area of 1,900,000 square miles and a population of 320,000,000, the average density, therefore, being 173, much less than that of China or Japan.

Thus there are across the Pacific three empires, Chinese, Japanese and Indian, with a combined population of 835,000,000 distributed over an aggregate area of 6,437,000 square miles.
The general average density is 130 people to the square mile, although, as we have shown, the actual density is greater if we confine our estimate to the habitable areas. The two Americas and Australasia have a combined area of 19,325,000 square miles and an aggregate population of 193,000,000, which makes the average density of population about ten to the square mile. A study of these figures will throw some light on what is known as the Yellow Peril. At the present time 44,750,000 square miles of land with a population of 1,190,000,000 out of a total area of 51,500,000 square miles and a total population of 1,750,000,000 are under the domination of the white race. Can this domination be maintained?

THE SILENCE OF MR. BARNARD.

The silence of Mr. Barnard on the question of Oriental immigration at a time like this is significant, if not ominous. Victoria is quite as much interested in the matter as Vancouver, yet our representative has nothing to say and nothing to suggest. Mr.
Stevens, the representative of Vancouver, on the other hand, is talking all the time and in torrents of words. He also has suggested action. First he was going to have the Komagata, with all her passengers aboard, towed out into the straits and conveyed to the Asiatic side of the Pacific by the two Japanese warships now in these waters.
That bold idea did not appeal to anybody, so Mr. Stevens thought out another. He proposed to shanghai the three hundred and fifty Hindus aboard the Komagata, pack them bag and baggage by main force on a C. P. R.
liner, with instructions to dump them anywhere on the other side of the ocean. For reasons that are apparent to everybody with the possible exception of Mr. Stevens this masterful idea did not meet with the approval of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, and we can imagine what a timid man like Sir Robert Borden felt and looked like when it was proposed to him. To be quite candid and aboveboard, we do not think the audacious Vancouver member ever entertained a notion himself that any of his schemes would prove acceptable to anybody. He is merely playing a game, toying with the issue. He is not a "legitimate" actor; burlesque is his specialty. But surely Mr. Barnard might do something in an effort to impress his constituents with the fact that he can play the game also. If he remains silent, we shall all reach the conclusion that after all there is substance to his confession in parliament that there are "influential interests" behind the whole Oriental immigration question which cannot be ignored and that these are considered by him as of paramount importance, of greater consequence than maintaining British Columbia as a white man's country. Our representative, however, just for political effect, might emerge from seclusion for a brief moment and assure the people that he still is in favor of "absolute exclusion." We hate to see him outdone both in acting and eloquence by H. H. Stevens, M. P.

HIS PERSONAL PLÉDGE.

John Claffin, head of the great drygoods concern which went into the hands of a receiver a few days ago, has pledged his personal fortune of ten million dollars for the protection of his creditors. This probably will tide his business over the wave which threatens to submerge it. His action in throwing his personal assets into the scales will attract considerable attention and occasion some comment, not because he is doing more than he should do, but because it shows that he is not scheming to do less. The fashion these days is to let the receiver wrestle with the corporate assets of the firm, while the late proprietor, after transferring everything personally attachable to some other party, sails for Carlsbad to take the waters or for the balm of Riviera.

Sir William and Sir Donald must have smiled incredulously at Claffin's lack of finesse. When their large enterprise was verging in the direction of a receiver did they pledge their personal fortunes, exceeding those of Claffin, to protect their creditors?
Perish the thought. They merely demanded that the people do the pledging and the people through the government they elected did so. What a shout would have ascended to the heavens had John Claffin requested the government of the United States to go good for him in order to avert a financial panic!

We observe that owing to a hitch between the Canadian Northern pro-motors and the government relative to the conditions on which the securities guaranteed by the government are to be marketed, Sir William Mackenzie is raising money in New York on his personal security to tide over the situation pending the adjustment of the difficulty. Sir William can be dependent upon to transfer this obligation to the public just as soon as an agreement is reached regarding the disposition of the guaranteed securities. The incident of his temporary financing, however, is illuminating. If he is able to borrow money in New York for interim purposes on his own security, why did not the government insist upon him doing it before, when contractors and equipment supply firms were pressing for settlement?

The fame of the Borden commission on the high cost of living and its investigation of conditions on the Pacific coast has spread throughout Canada.
Commenting on the press reports of the manner in which the commission did its work while out here, the Montreal Herald says we have overlooked the essential point, "which is that the commissioners gather in their impressions sub-consciously, and that therefore there were no 'proceedings' to report in the ordinary sense of the term. The presence of press and public would only have dislocated the psychologic atmosphere, would only have dammed the ethereal ebb and flow of the tele-pathic phenomena. We may be sure that the commissioners knew what they were doing if the public did not, and that we shall know all about the high cost of living in Mr. Borden's good time. Till then let us possess our souls in patience. Let us without murmur pay more and more for the necessities of life as the cost mounts up and up, sure and certain that at the long last Mr. Borden, with this commission's report in hand, will be able to tell us what the reason of the high cost of living isn't, even if he cannot tell us what it is."

Ottawa advises suggest a reason for the sweet reasonableness and extraordinary amiability of Hon. "Bob" Rogers during the late session of parliament. The minister was remarkably courteous to the opposition, it will be remembered. The explanation is that Mr. Rogers still is determined to have the post of High Commissioner in London, and is trying to prove to the Liberals by his unexampled courtesy that he should be permitted to "stay there after he gets there." Hon. "Bob" acknowledges tentatively that there is little prospect of the Borden government succeeding in the general elections which shortly must be held. The cumulative effects of its acts of omission and commission taken in conjunction with the depression that broods over the land have destroyed beyond repair the confidence of the people in the capacity of the administration.
There is something more than mere assumption in that view.

Every once in a while Sir Richard McBride or the morning paper uncorks that ill-conceived scheme of linking up Seattle and other American centres with Alaska by a railroad constructed through this province. The presumption is that the Canadian people will either build or heavily subsidize such an enterprise. Our impression is that before they back any proposition of that kind, the principal benefit from which would inure to our hustling cousins south of the international boundary line, they will desire to see completed the systems upon which they have expended hundreds of millions of dollars. Our prospects of obtaining all-rail connection between Vancouver island and the mainland are not going to be helped by our flying off on the Seattle-Alaska tangent.

Says our good neighbor: "The Colonist is not particularly disturbed because anyone, no matter how high his position may be, unless he is a judge sitting as such, may have expressed an opinion on a legal point different from his own. Until the courts have decided, any legal question must remain a matter of opinion." Well, candidly, we did expect our contemporary would be disturbed to find itself at variance with two ministers of justice and two prime ministers regarding the constitutionality of section 23 of the Immigration Act. It does not generally commit itself so far beyond the possibility of retreat. We hope, however, that it still does not maintain that they are "hopelessly ignorant of the law of the land."

The anaesthetic pistol is the latest invention. Instead of firing bullets into and wounding or killing the person at which it is aimed, it discharges a chemical compound that partially asphyxiates and makes him helpless.
But the Chinese had an idea something like that long ago and applied it in their wars with white barbarians, consequently it is not likely that civilized nations will adopt anaesthetic guns when they have an "uncivilized" war on their hands. The weapons are not long enough in range to suit highly civilized purposes.

Read this, ye scoffers, and henceforth hold your peace. An eminent physiological authority says ladies of the present day are better dressed from the standpoint of hygiene and aesthetics than their sisters of all the ages.
They conform more closely to the standards set by art and medicine—which, we are told, exactly coincide—than they ever did. They conform strictly to the standard set by fashion, and that without wearing either too much or too little. All the same, it would be interesting to have gran-ma's views on the subject.

The Montreal Mail deprecates the entrance of clergymen into the political arena as candidates for the Ontario legislature on the ground that it will give rise to the creation of party lines in their churches. There is a great deal of truth in this. If they are elected and still retain their charges they will find difficulty in harmonizing their church work with their political activities. Sooner or later they will have to give up one or the other, because each is important enough to require a great part of a man's time and attention.

The fact that a company of players has been accorded privileges in a public park bought and paid for by the people does not imply that citizens shall not enjoy the pleasure of this public place without being subjected to annoyance from collectors of doles. A correspondent who takes a great, and doubtless perfectly justifiable, interest in this matter seems to have "the wrong pig by the ear."

During the three years of Conservative rule in Canada the cost of living has increased steadily, and we are told by statisticians that it will go higher still. Has there been a corresponding improvement in the conditions which make for the comfort of the average individual? Is the average business man securing higher profits or the average worker steadier work at higher wages?

The Ontario elections will be held on Monday. The issue there is not an ordinary one, and we fear that in the churches of the province to-morrow the subjects discussed from the pulpit and the matters in the mind of the pew will not be what our Conservative friends regard as appropriate in sacred edifice on hallowed day.

One result of the investigation into the affairs of Premier Flemming of New Brunswick is that Conservative newspapers are calling for the publication of the source of all political com-paign contributions. They always call for something like that when they are found out.

Here is a problem in proportion. If one boat load of East Indians in Vancouver harbor can make H. H. Stevens, M. P., cut such eccentric figures, what sort of gyrations will he describe when the next load, which has just

LITTLE BOY BLUE.

By Eugene Field.

The little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and staunch he stands;
The little tin soldier is red with rust,
And his musket molds in his hands.

Time was when the little toy dog was new,
And the soldier was passing fair,
And that was the time that our Little Boy Blue

Kissed them and put them there.
"Now, don't you go, till I come," he said,
"And don't you make any noise."
And toddling off to his trundle bed,
He dreamed of his pretty toys.

And as he was dreaming, an angel song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue;
Oh, the years are many and the years
are long,
But the little toy friends are true.

Ay, faithful to Little Boy Blue, they stand,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of a vanished hand,
And the smile of a little face.

And they wonder, as waiting the long years thro',
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue
Since he kissed them and put them there.

Automobile Run.—Many members of the Victoria Automobile association left this afternoon for a club run to Brentwood Bay hotel. The day was ideal for an outing and many of the members spent the afternoon sailing about the inlet. One of the features was the refreshments served at the hotel. As these runs are of so enjoyable a nature, the association intends to hold another early next month.

Duty of Officials.—When the streets committee yesterday afternoon was instructing the building inspector and the fire chief to make a report on the amended plans for the marquis at the Campbell block, Alderman McNeill declared he would refuse to have his judgment swayed by any official. He was frequently told on the streets that one official, the fire chief, appeared to formulate the policy of the council. Alderman Todd observed that the chief was doing his duty when he expressed his objection to the proposed marquis. He admitted the chief for possessing backbone to express himself on all matters.

Sailors Repeat Thanks.—In addition to the thanks of the Japanese sailors conveyed to the government through the provincial secretary, Vice-Admiral Kuroki has written to Sir Richard McBride expressing his deep sense of gratitude and that of the men under his command for all that was done to entertain them while in the province. This letter was received by the premier yesterday. Hon. Dr. Young has conveyed through Consul-General Hori, at Vancouver, the thanks of the lieutenant-governor and the provincial government for the handsome gifts received from the vice-admiral in recognition of the courtesies extended while here.

Benefit Entertainment Given.—Last evening a benefit concert was given at Semple's hall in aid of St. Jude's hall, the main feature of the programme being the performance by the Western Star Amateur Dramatic society of "The Last Look," a two-act temperance drama which was given with great ability by the following actors: A. W. Semple, L. S. Weston, H. Hasenfratz, A. Clunk, D. Cochenour, Miss F. Hasenfratz, Mrs. H. Hasenfratz and Miss E. Kennedy. The curtain went up at 8.15, and between the acts Professor Hinton played special musical numbers. At the close of the performance a dance was given, many of the audience remaining for this concluding feature of a very enjoyable evening.

Hold Last Meeting.—The last meeting before the summer vacation was held by the Municipal Chapter I. O. D. E. yesterday in the Alexandra club. Mrs. Home in the chair. A great amount of business was disposed of in order to wind up the work of the summer, this including a quantity of correspondence. Letters from the Agnes Deans Cameron and Florence Nightingale chapters were read, the latter promising a donation of $10 towards the provincial chapter funds, and the former $5. Paardoberg day was suggested by them as the day to be set aside for special commemorative services by the chapters. Mrs. Home gave an account of the reorganization proceedings in connection with the Daisy Chain chapter last week, and a letter was read from Ottawa in connection with the colors to be given by the chapter to the 88th regiment. These have been approved, and the secretary was instructed to write to the Royal School of Needlework requesting that the colors be sent, if possible, by the time H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught visits Victoria. The chapter will not resume its meetings until the last Friday in September.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

Victoria Times, June 27, 1889.

His Lordship Bishop Lemmens will leave for Juneau on the steamer G. W. Elder to-morrow.

We understand that the city council has, with a spirit of enterprise which is much to be commended, agreed to grant certain aid to the Victoria-Saanich and New Westminster Railway company to aid in the early commencement of the line.

The annual examination of scholars attending St. Ann's convent was held this afternoon in the music room on the ground floor of the Humboldt street premises. The exhibition of sewing, embroidery, knitting and crochet work was a credit to the sisters and pupils.

Don't Buy Off Agents, come and see our roses in bloom and then you will know what you are buying. Lansdowne Floral Gardens, 1591 Hillside Ave., Victoria, B. C. Two blocks from car.

Fine Day To-morrow.—"I think it is safe to say that we are going to have a nice day Sunday," stated F. Napier Denison, weather expert at Gonzales Hill, this morning. "The barometer is high all over the coast and I think we are in for a spell of fine weather—for a day or two. Yesterday's rain was by no means general, and although there was a little on the lower mainland it was exceptionally heavy around here."

Congratulate Sir Robert.—The Imperial Conservative association, the organization formed by those Conservatives who object to the actions of the Beaver club and the machine, has through its president, Beaumont Boggs, congratulated its honorary president, Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden, premier of Canada, on the honor conferred upon him by the king. A message of thanks and appreciation was received in reply.

Mount Arrowsmith Climb.—The great event of the week in the Y. M. C. A. activities will be the climb up Mt. Arrowsmith. The start will be made on Monday, some of the Victoria contingent already having left for Cameron lake, where they will be joined by members of the Y. M. C. A. from Vancouver. The start will be made on Monday, and the C. P. R. but will be used for passing the night. The final part of the ascent and the descent back to Cameron lake will be made on Tuesday, the following day being spent in more leisurely fashion at the latter place, and the boys returning to Victoria on Thursday.

Presentation to Principal.—Retiring Principal J. R. Gale, of Esquimalt school, was presented with a fine shaving set by the cadet corps of the school yesterday at the closing exercises. Two other teachers are leaving Miss Beatrice Bell to be married, and Miss Govenlock to assume the position of principal of the large primary school in Calgary. Miss Govenlock is one of the most highly esteemed primary instructors in the west. Applications for the three vacant positions are coming in in large numbers and will be considered at the school board's meeting Tuesday night. A number of local men have applied for the principalship.

Fourth Adjournment.—Mrs. George Hallock was still unable to appear in police court this morning to give evidence which would help to free her husband from the charge of burglary—breaking into the residence of W. J. Ketterman last Saturday night, the lady who she is wanted to clear up is the cause Hallock says he had for wanting to see Ketterman at the time he claims to have kicked the door in order to see if the landlord was in. In view of the serious nature of the charge against the man, the city prosecutor made no objection to his having a fourth remand for the purpose of having his wife's testimony.

Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp.—The boys' camp of the Y. M. C. A. will open next Thursday at Albert Head, and already twenty-three lads have signed up for the two weeks' event. The outing will afford the most wholesome sort of pastime for the boys. The site of the camp is an excellent one, right on the water's edge, and accessible by automobile from Victoria, a district motorbus running out several times daily. The camp is on the lagoon on the property of Mr. Whitty, and overlooks a half-mile of sandy beach. The bathing is first-class, and there will be fishing and fishing, "bake," baseball, campfire meetings, climbs and life saving exercises. Each tent will have eight boys and a tent leader, and every precaution will be taken to see that lads go properly equipped so as to extract every enjoyment from the outing. Boys who are not members of the Y. M. C. A. can win privilege to camp attendance by taking a summer membership.

BOOKS

The profitable advertising of books is one of the hardest problems a storekeeper has to face.

It is for this reason that the booksellers are so eager for publishers to advertise their new books in the newspapers of their town.

The booksellers are always willing to co-operate by adequate displays and every other legitimate means.

If the publishers realized what business possibilities were being left undeveloped their entire advertising plans would be materially changed.

The Oath Bound Covenant

How Will It Be Fulfilled?

"By myself have I sworn it saith the Lord . . . in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed."

The angels also heralded "the good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people;" while the Apostle Paul refers to its accomplishment as guaranteed by "two immutable things"—God's Word and His Oath, nevertheless the great majority of mankind have not received his blessing, and many have wondered how this Covenant confirmed by the oath of the Great Jehovah, will be fulfilled.

Many have asked the question—how will the billion two hundred million heathen in the world receive their blessing, they not having heard the only name given under heaven and amongst men, whereby they must be saved? The question may also be asked—what about the millions of infidels in civilised lands, those who have not the hearing ear, and whom the Apostle says, "the God of this world (the devil) has blinded?" Is there any hope for the great non-churching population of the world? Are they included in the good tidings of great joy, or is this great Covenant going to fail?

These questions and many others will be answered from the Scriptures Sunday evening. The speaker in part says this great Covenant will be fulfilled to the letter; the Bible is its own interpreter, and as the Lord of Hosts hath sworn, so shall it come to pass. This lecture is the fourth of the series following the great Bible drama, and will be delivered Sunday evening at 7.30 in the new I. B. S. A. hall, 1612 Douglas street, above the Royal Dairy. A cordial invitation is extended to all; seats are free and no collection is taken.

Picnic Was Enjoyed.—The members of St. John's church choir had a most enjoyable picnic at the Gorge park on Thursday evening. Tea was served in the Japanese tea gardens and at the conclusion of the meal a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the ladies of the party who were responsible for the excellent repast. The whole party then went up the Saanich Arm in the Japanese "sampler." During the trip the choir rendered various glees under the able baton of G. J. Burnett, organist and choirmaster. Several members contributing solos. This musical part of the entertainment was appreciated not only by the choir, but also by its scattered audience on the land and water.

Oak Bay Police Court.—Police court was held in the Oak Bay municipal hall yesterday afternoon by Magistrate Jay. B. S. Rennie was fined $10 for failing to keep on the right side on the roadway while driving his motor car on Cadboro Bay road on Sunday last. The defendant was following a street car but it was not proceeding fast enough for his taste and he pulled out on the right hand side of the car. As he did so a bicyclist was coming towards him on the proper side of the road and was struck by Mr. Rennie's car and knocked down. Fortunately no injury was done to the cyclist, but his worship pointed out to the defendant how easily the matter might have been a very serious one for him.

COUNTRY FETE OPENED

Lady McBride, Honorary President of Girls' Realm Guild, Wishes Success to Undertaking.

Lady McBride, honorary president of the Girls' Realm Guild, this afternoon at 2.30 opened the country fete being held at Lovelands under the auspices and in aid of the funds of this organization. The ceremony was brief and informal, Lady McBride gracefully thanking the ladies of the committee for asking her to open the fete, and wishing the undertaking every success.

The pretty grounds, lent for the occasion by Mr. and Mrs. Osler, with their southern aspect, looked their gayest with the lavish decorations placed there during the past few days by the small corps of workers who have been preparing for the undertaking, bunting and flags being most effectively arranged about the part of the grounds and the stage where the more formal part of the programme was set. The pupils of St. Margaret's school assisted on the programme with a song-cycle entitled "Flora's Holiday," and a group of colored minstrels also provided some amusing numbers. Plenty of diversion was provided for the young people, many of whom, with their parents, went out early in the afternoon in order to get the full benefit of the entire proceedings. Coconut shies and Aunt Sallies were on hand, and a shooting-gallery was another of the popular pastimes.

During the afternoon programme there was a demonstration by Boy Scouts of scouting and bridge-building, first aid to the injured and signalling. Tea and other refreshments were features, and well-stocked stalls supplied plenty of interest for those inclined to shopping. The proceedings are continuing until 7 o'clock this evening, and to-morrow afternoon there will be an open-air sacred concert given by well-known singers assisted by the Boy Scouts. Special trains are being run by the B. C. Electric Interurban line.

To Improve Expression As Well as Complexion

No face is really beautiful that lacks expression. Do you realize that continual use of powders and creams tends to spoil the complexion and elasticity of expression? Why not try cosmetics, use something better, which won't clog the pores of the skin, dry, chafe, or irritate? Ordinary mercerized wax acts quite differently from any cosmetic. It wonderfully improves any complexion, giving it life and expression. By gradually, harmlessly peeling off the thin veil of surface skin, it brings to view a pure, soft, spotless complexion, delicately beautiful and youthful. Every druggist has this wax. It is seldom more than an ounce in a pint with hazel, use as a wash lotion. This soon removes even the most obstinate wrinkles.

SECOND DAY OF FETE DRAWS BIG CROWDS

Programme of Thursday Repeated at "Mount Adelaide" Yesterday; Proves Popular

The second day of the Rose Festival at "Mount Adelaide" proved almost equally successful with the opening day on Thursday, and again big crowds pressed through the gates and queued through the grounds in an effort to squeeze every particle of enjoyment out of the precious hours.

The gypsy encampment was a favored resort of the visitors, and Zuleika and Anitra, the two fortune-tellers, drew in the coin so eagerly deposited in lieu of the insight which they were giving into the futures of their patrons. The rifle range and Punch and Judy show drew numbers of young people and their elders, and more tickets were taken for the raffles at the Mount Adelaide stall, the booth where the lampshades were being sold, and for the garden scene painted by Mrs. Mary Riter Hamilton.

In some instances the supplies did not quite meet the demand yesterday. The Mount Adelaide stall was completely sold out before the close of the afternoon, as were the flower and fruit stalls where Mrs. N. Shaw, Miss Leiser and the Misses Murray did a strenuous business. Afternoon tea and ices and strawberries were in great demand, and the tables were besieged all afternoon, the big corps of charming waitresses at both places having just about all they could do to attend to their customers.

The pretty programme of dances given on the opening day was repeated, "June Roses, or Summer's Awakening," proving, as before, the most captivating and attractive of the many pleasing numbers. The playground boys repeated their Danish "Shoemaker's Dance" under direction of Mr. Crompton, and several of the playground girls took part in Morris dances given under the direction of Miss Jarvis. The "Haymaker's Dance," given by the girls in Street Cries costume who were so busy during the afternoon vending fruit and flowers from prettily-arranged

ed baskets suspended from their necks, was an infectious frolic, and a number of very graceful maidens, dressed as cavaliers and ladies of the period, performed a pretty minuet on the lawn.

The Misses Dunsmuir and the other indefatigable entertainers who had been taking part in the vaudeville provided an excellent performance during the evening, their charming entertainment being augmented by several Highland dances by Miss Mary Shearer and Miss Emmett, Piper Parks providing the necessary music.

The proceeds have been almost more than anticipated, despite the somewhat bad luck which has been provided by the weather, and the promoters of the enterprise are delighted with the results of the undertaking, which was only made possible through the generosity of Mrs. Henry Croft, who was among the chief organizers.

WANT GROUNDS GRADED

High School Grounds to be Filled Up; The School Garden Movement.

Tenders are in for the supply of soil for grading of the high school grounds, which has to be undertaken by the city council in fulfillment of an agreement made when the location at Spring Ridge was settled. The council will on Monday award a contract for the supply of the soil required. The parks department is anxious to make a start on the work as soon as possible, and the school board is anxious to have the work finished soon.

It is stated that at the beginning of the week after next an experimental plot on the site is to be used for the education of teachers who are contemplating the inauguration of school gardens next term. So far this phase of development has been conducted only by Principal H. B. McLean, at the George Jay school, where the plots and greenhouse have proved a great attraction. The desire is to extend the movement to other public schools along the line of the policy adopted by the board after Mr. McLean returned from the east. To give teachers some opportunity to learn what is to be done, it is proposed to take advantage of the holiday season for their instruction in the rudiments of horticulture.

I think it is a very satisfactory thing that our foreign questions, which not very many years ago used to lead to most acute differences of opinion here in England and elsewhere, have entirely ceased to be party matters.—Viscount Buxton.

CHANGES NEEDED IN LAWS ON VAGRANCY

Chief Langley Contributes Paper on Subject at Convention of Chief Constables

At the annual convention of the Chief Constables' Association of Canada, which has just been concluded at Winnipeg, a valuable paper was read on behalf of Chief of Police Langley, he being unable to attend. This dealt with some matters of police regulation, the principal one being in regard to the existing state of the law on vagrancy.

The criminal code defines a vagrant and vagrancy thus: "Every one is a loose, idle or disorderly person or vagrant who has no visible means of support, refuses or neglects to provide for his family, gives an indecent exhibition in a public place, begs, loiters on the highway, is guilty of disorderly conduct, wantonly disturbs the peace and quiet of the public, destroys signs, walls, fences or gardens, is a night-walker, keeps or frequents a house of ill-fame, or who supports himself by gaming, crime or on the avails of prostitution."

"This section has been held to apply only to loose, idle and disorderly persons, and not to persons who are otherwise of good character or reputation," says Chief Langley in his paper. "Although the section begins as it does it has been so held in several reported cases, and this has been followed here in several prosecutions. If the section were amended by striking out the introductory words and substituting therefor, 'Every one who . . . is a vagrant,' it would do away with the 'loose, idle and disorderly' requirement and make the section apply to everyone, whether of general good character or not, and make the section workable."

"As an illustration of how the section has been construed here I may relate the following. One B was charged that he was a loose, idle and disorderly person, who did unlawfully frequent a disorderly house, to-wit, an opium joint (this was prior to the amendment of 1913). The accused was shown to be a person who habitually frequented the premises of a Chinese opium joint and had a key thereto, and he was convicted by the magistrate. An appeal was taken by way of rehearing, on which it was shown, in defence, that while there was no doubt as to the facts, he was a barber by trade and practiced such trade to a certain extent, and for this reason he was discharged, the rulings I have referred to being applied.

"By reason of this construction great difficulty arises. Take for instance, under the sub-section mentioned, young men in employment and otherwise of good character may, and often do, contravene the spirit of the sub-section and yet cannot be punished. This is recognized in Victoria, and I understand, in most of our Canadian cities, and is attempted to be got over by municipal by-laws under the powers conferred by the provincial statute, making it an offence for anyone to do such acts, but it is very doubtful if any such by-laws are good in law because of their infringing on the criminal law."

"If the section was amended as suggested all doubt would be done away with and the law, in this regard, would be uniform throughout Canada, whether in a city or outside city limits, even if such by-laws are good, which would be most desirable."

"The sub-section relating to disorderly conduct would be more workable, I think, if the wording were changed to read 'in or near any street, road, highway or public place, is drunk; or who in any such street, road, highway or public place, in the hearing of any one or more persons, uses obscene, blasphemous or insulting language, or screams or sings in a disorderly manner.' As the section now stands, even if a person were to be drunk or swear, and was not a person or otherwise of good reputation or general good character, a conviction could not be made unless it was also shown that he created a disturbance thereby. These two difficulties are too obvious to need further elaboration."

"The power of arresting suspicious characters should be extended, and I would suggest that the section giving power to arrest without warrant any person found by night committing any offence be amended by striking out the words 'by night.' This would give power to arrest suspicious characters in the day time as well as by night. It would facilitate and legalize the arrest of suspicious characters after some serious crime has been committed, and, in my opinion, is a power the police ought to have."

"If this is deemed advisable, in order that the power be effectual, a new section should be added, directing a special procedure on such arrest, which I would suggest should be along these lines: 'Everyone arrested pursuant to section 35 shall be brought before a justice before noon on the following day, which justice may, upon hearing the circumstances, on oath, either release such person or direct his further detention for a period of not longer than three days, unless some other charge is laid in the meantime.'

These suggestions of Chief Langley met with the approval of the chiefs at the convention and will be recommended to the department of justice for its consideration.

WILL BE REPEATED.

Excellent Entertainment Given Last Night by Cadets' Band To Be Given Again at Lampson Street School.

Although a wet night prevented a large audience from attending the concert given last evening at the George Jay school by the cadets' band, under Bandmaster Plowright, so successful was the undertaking that the performance is to be repeated on Monday evening at Lampson street school, when it is hoped that a large audience will avail itself of the opportunity of hearing some other phases of the much-boasted Victoria musical talent.

C. H. Lugin was chairman at the entertainment last evening, and was enthusiastic in his expression of appreciation and pleasure. The feature of the evening was the delightful programme of harp selections provided by Mme. Mendoza, who played first of all an operatic selection which won her no less than three encores, the last of which was a medley of beautiful Spanish airs which were rendered with great spirit and musicianly skill.

Of the other numbers on the programme, many of which were supplied by the band, the boys' improvement in playing proved something by way of a revelation to their hearers. The euphonium solo given by Cadet Morrison was very fine, and nothing better in banjo playing than the trio provided by Messrs. Heater, Macdonald and Foxwell has ever been heard in the city. The cornet duet by Cadets Vincent and Banks; the horn quartette by Cadets Berka, Aetle, Brinkman and Turnbull; and the trombone trio and brass bass quartette were also very cleverly performed. The soloists on the programme were R. Morrison and Miss M. Young, both of whose numbers were very much appreciated.

THE DISGUISED DERSH.

Kitchener's delight in disguising himself when a young man has given rise to many stories, true and otherwise, of the famous soldier. The following incident was told by one who served with the Essex Regiment in a campaign against the Dervishes.

"I was acting corporal of the guard over a large number of 'gentlemen of the desert' whom we had taken prisoners. In the course of my rounds, a captive within the tent drew my attention, and I was surprised to hear in good English the request, 'Corporal, I wish to get out of this.' I, of course, reported the occurrence to the sergeant of the guard, only to be met with the curt reply, 'let the fool stay where he is.' I continued my rounds and was again met with the request."

Again the corporal reported the matter, and this time the reply was as curt, but a bit stronger, so he went on his rounds again. As he passed the spot this time the voice from within came once more. "Say, corporal, you are of the Essex Regiment?"

The corporal said he was.

"Well, tell Mr. B. that I wish to speak to him."

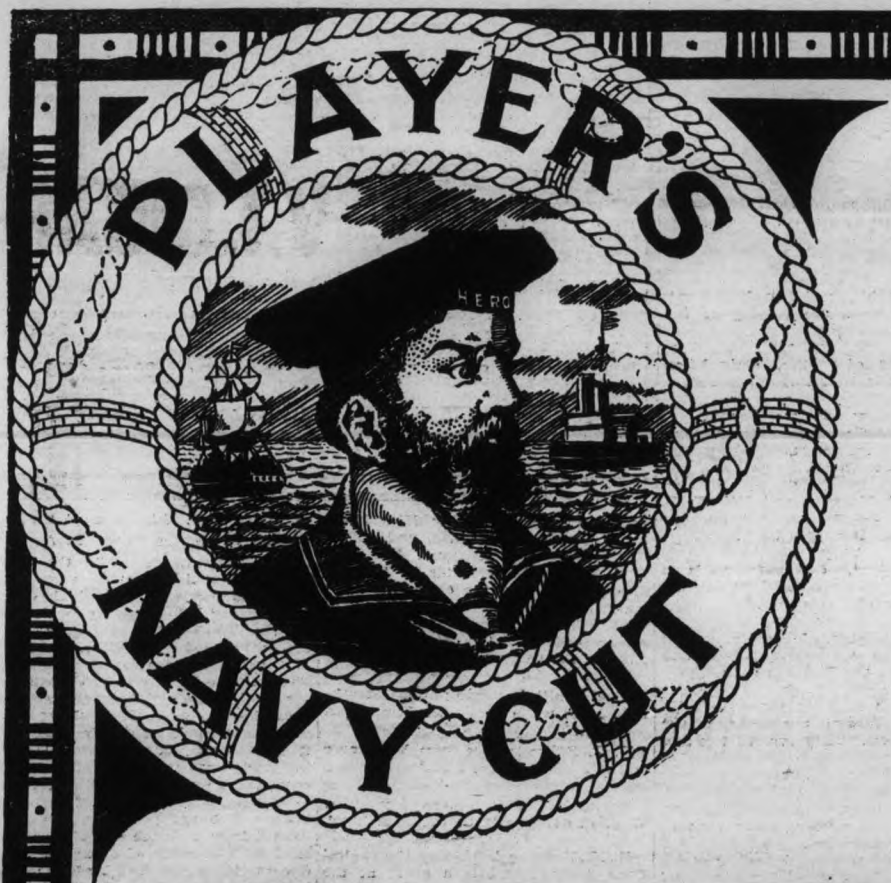

"What name?"

"Kitchener," came the reply; and the message was accordingly reported to the sergeant, who immediately made for the prisoner's quarters.

"I shall never forget that meeting," said the corporal. "The dishevelled 'dervish' was in reality the Lord Kitchener that was to be, who had been spying among the enemy and had apparently been taken prisoner by his own troops."

New York, June 26.—From out of Father Time's Chest, from the till labeled 1880 have come the basque and polonaise. To be sure they look different, but so slight is the change that it seems as though it is the figure of the woman rather than the cut of the garment itself that makes them seem a part of the fashions of 1914. Then the waists were small and compressed, now the larger the waist the prouder the well built woman is. In fact, pads have been worn by naturally small-waisted women to make them appear larger around the waist than nature really intended them to be. Sashes are worn with these waists, which tie at a low line in the back, causing or adding to the bustle effect which was also a part of the fashions when these waists were worn before. The skirts of these dresses are mostly made with the long tunic, though some are made with a series of ruffles from hem to waistline. The long tunics are being made in sheer and thin materials and are even more charming than in the heavier materials. A dress of crepe with a ruffled skirt is made with a long tunic over a narrow underskirt of the same material. The waist is made with a surplice front having a shawl collar. A chemise of folded chiffon in creamy white is worn. At the back of the waist hanging from the shoulders to below the waist line is a circular cape.

With this was worn a charming flat Louis XVI. hat of leghorn, well fluted up at the back, and upheld by a bandeau of small flowers. A sparse wreath of these same flowers (daisies, roses and forget-me-nots) circles the top, across which a black velvet ribbon extends, tying behind under the bandeau of flowers and falling well onto the hair beneath.

Likewise for afternoon and evening wear, planned to wear with this same leghorn hat, was a sheer organza frock, flounced and picot-edged. The three flounces were narrower both in depth and width as they descended. This gave a wide hip and narrow foot-line silhouette. There are always occasions when trips to town or week-ends in the country are suddenly planned, and if one's clothes are not in condition for such a contingency the pleasurable trip is spoiled. For such an occasion a silk dress, light in weight and stylishly made, is appreciated. It does not have to be laundried. Its simple cut fits it for all sorts of informal affairs, while more dressy materials will allow of its being used for the more formal occasions. The first illustration is a smart example of a dress to fill such a need—in blue foulard. The waist has the raglan shoulder line with set-in sleeves. The reverse of the waist turn back from a vestee of net, whose fullness is gathered up on a silken cord. The skirt is made with fullness in the flounced lower section, a la Paquin. The white hat worn with this dress is of the stylish tricorne shape—with a single white rose and green leaves set in each indentation at the front of the a yoke which is in one with the sleeves. Many thin frocks are made with a hem of heavier material. A red voile had a hem of natural colored linen. A dress of embroidery flouncing had a wide fold of pink silk set under the scalloped edge of the skirt hem, thereby adding to the charm as well as to the durability of the frock, for a hem is usually of material stronger than that with which it is combined.

Sashes are seen on many of the summer models. They are often straight pieces of ribbon passed around the waist and tied into a loose bow much in the same manner as the sashes of a child's apron. To keep up with this popularity the ribbons are much more elaborate than they were, and are a reminder of what the grandmothers of the present generation wore in their girlhood flowered and brocaded, satin and velvet designs being intermingled with more effects. There are also the Egyptian sashes of Oriental colorings which wind round and round the body fully swathing the waist and hips.

The small private chapel of St. Margaret's, Thetis Island, was the scene of a charming wedding on Tuesday last when Kathleen Mollie, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Hoffmann, of Overbury, Thetis Island, and Randle Barrington Foote, of Maple Bay, third son of the late Colonel Barrington Foote, R. A., were united in marriage. Both the young people are well-known and very popular in the district, and the little chapel was crowded to capacity with their friends. The Very Rev. the Dean of Columbia, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Ryall, of Chemsalus, conducted the choral service. The bride was given away by her brother, Robert Hoffmann, and was charming in a simple gown of ivory charmeuse, made en panner, with lace frills, the bodice of transparent lace being made over shell-pink lining. The court train was pink-lined, and turned back with a lover's knot of satin and orange blossom, the tulle veil being draped from a Dutch cap of lace fastened with a spray of orange blossom. She carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies, and was attended by little Daphne Justice, daughter of Captain and Mrs. Clive Justice, wearing a Kate Greenaway frock of embroidered muslin with wide sash of apple-green silk, a mob cap, and the pearl cross and chain given her by the bridegroom. She carried a basket of pink roses with streamers of tulle. The best man was Henry Allfrey. Immediately after the ceremony the guests repaired to the home of the bride, where a sumptuous luncheon was served, a procession of small craft afterwards accompanying the bride and bridegroom to Chemsalus, where a motor car was waiting to take the happy pair to Brentwood, where the first part of the honeymoon is being spent, the remainder to be passed in a tour to Seattle, Portland and Spokane. The bride's going away suit was of navy blue serge trimmed with Dolly Varden silk, with lace hat trimmed with blue velvet and roses, and a blouse of cream lace. Among those present at the ceremony were the bride's mother, Mrs. Hoffmann, in black lace and black hat trimmed with white tulle and feathers; Mrs. W. J. Roper (Victoria), the bride's aunt, in French gown of Alice blue silk poplin and black hat trimmed with Dresden ribbon and ostrich plumes; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Barrington Foote, the latter in white; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burchell, the latter in blue silk and lace with white hat; Mr. and Mrs. Schwabe, of Cobble Hill; Captain and Mrs. Clive Justice; Captain and Mrs. Rice, of Maple Bay; Miss McClure (Victoria); Mr. and Mrs. Bulth Sims (Vancouver); Mr. and Mrs. Loggin; Mr. and Mrs. Bennett; Major and Miss Heneghe; Mr. and Miss Lawrence; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Roberts (Kuper Island); Mrs. Taylor, and others. Mr. and Mrs. Barrington Foote will make their home in Maple Bay, where the bridegroom has a ranch.

By Schooner 40 Years Ago Victoria to the Charlottes.

Hardships of Travel in Earlier Days

Interesting Reminiscences Gleaned from Diaries of Late Thos. Russell, former city assessor.

The diary which the late Thomas Russell kept while on the Queen Charlotte forty-four years ago, during the time he was superintending the work of development of the mines of the Queen Charlotte Coal Mining company, is written in a clear and firm hand characteristic of the man. There is not a blot nor an erasure in the whole of the diary, which covers a period of six months.

As told in the notes given in last Saturday's paper, Mr. Russell sailed from Victoria on September 21, 1870, on board the sloop Thornton, which was in command of Captain George Brown and had the owner, Captain James D. Warren, also on board. Twelve days later the vessel had reached a point three hundred miles northwest of this port and was about to drop Vancouver Island below the horizon as it sailed out into Queen Charlotte Sound.

Captain Warren thought it safer to go north through one of the inside passages than to run right across to the islands, and so the vessel was headed for Cape Caution. The men whom Mr. Russell was taking with him to the mines were not sailor men and he had to take a hand himself in standing watch with the owner and the two men who constituted the crew, Captain Brown and a Frenchman who was at once chief mate and cook. The men, Mr. Russell remarks in his record, did not care a button how things went when they were not sensibly beyond being up in time for breakfast and going to their bunks after supper.

During a midnight watch kept by the captain and Mr. Russell they passed the entrance to the inside passage, as they were informed next day by Mr. Warren, and so the vessel had to be headed for the entrance to Milbank Sound, which was lighted in the afternoon, as was thought. The voyagers did not take what is now known as the inside passage followed by all the steamers on the northern run, but intended to keep to the west of Princess Royal and Pitt islands. Point Day, which had to be rounded in order to get into Laredo channel, is described as a fearful looking place with large rocks running two miles out into the sea and reefs and jagged rocks all about.

It was raining and squally, and altogether a dismal Sunday, so that it is no wonder that Mr. Russell owns to being homesick. As the night advanced it became pitch dark, the rain came down in torrents and it was described as a fearful looking place with large rocks running two miles out into the sea and reefs and jagged rocks all about. The seas were running very high but fortunately the wind died down and the rocks gave some shelter. It was impossible to anchor, although it was deep water just where she was, and efforts to head her out again were fruitless. In fact, they were trying to get her round when she missed stars, and narrowly escaped being impaled on a rock. For a couple of hours the Thornton drifted about among the rocks, finally being blown out as she had not in. The early morning light showed what a dangerous place the vessel had been in and what a miracle it had been that she got out in safety. At the height of her troubles Mr. Russell had given up hope of her getting out and had removed his coat and boots to be ready to swim.

Captain Warren was quite at a loss to fix the location of the ship and ran into a narrow pass, eventually getting into the inside channel at Bella Bella. He then found that what he had taken for the entrance to Milbank Sound was a deep bay thirty miles to the south (Queen Sound) and the point he had taken for Point Day was a reef of rocks running four miles out into the sea. On the way up to Milbank Sound the old H. B. Steamer Otter was passed. Anchor was cast before dark, as no one desired to spend another night like the previous one.

In the worst gale experienced on the trip, with very thick weather and a touch of fog, the sloop rounded Point Day, and was off Milbank Sound, entering Yaredo channel at noon. Next day Principe channel, which lies between Pitt Island and Banks island, was entered in the teeth of a hurricane. All this time Mr. Russell had been assisting on deck, as the vessel was short-handed for such bad weather, and in consequence he was soaked through and cold. The schooner behaved perfectly in the worst of the gale, flying with dirt. Another seam of two feet in width was found to be fine coal and free from slate, but too narrow to work, while a six-foot seam was rather soft. All the tunnels were driven too near the surface to get good coal.

At the outset the new arrival got a taste of west coast weather in the rainy season, the rain coming down in sheets without the slightest intermission, but on the other hand there were many delightful days, warm and sunny. The work at the mine occupied all Mr. Russell's attention then and during the whole of the time he spent there. The men were none too expert, and he had one or other on the sick list all the time, sometimes quite seriously ill, so that to his anxiety on the business side he had the worry any sympathetic man would have for another in trouble. None of them appears to have been possessed of much initiative, and Mr. Russell had to keep an eye on everything that was done, and very often show how a thing should be done, although the entire work was new to him.

OBJECT TO SITE AT SPRING RIDGE PITS

Aldermen Decide to Locate Asphalt Plant on Garbally Road Site

When the aldermen at the meeting of the streets committee yesterday afternoon came to discuss the proposed location of the asphalt paving plant, which the city engineer had recommended to be placed at Spring Ridge, Aldermen McNeill and Dilworth opposed the recommendation.

Alderman Fullerton joined in the protest on behalf of Spring Ridge residents. Alderman Dilworth believed the Garbally road yards should be used. Alderman Fullerton then formally moved that the location should be at Garbally road. He pointed to the obligation which the city had undertaken to fill up the old gravel pits at Spring Ridge. Would the High school have been located there if the school board had ever anticipated an asphalt plant in the neighborhood?

Assistant Engineer Foreman stated that the Spring Ridge site was cheaper and material would be more conveniently handled there. That was the reason for the recommendation. The plant was a semi-portable one, and could be moved later when circumstances demanded it. The aldermen then unanimously voted for the Garbally road site. A largely signed petition against the Spring Ridge site had been received. George Mellor, an Oxford street resident, appeared to protest against being assessed for boulevarding and paving when the street had been "up" for the greater part of the year through the collapse of the main sewer. It was stated there is no power to remit taxation. However a committee of officials was appointed to look into the matter.

USE "TIZ" FOR SORE, TIRED, ACHING FEET

No More Puffed-Up, Burning, Sweaty, Calloused Feet or Corns

Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelly feet, tired feet.

Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet—the only remedy that does. Use "TIZ" and wear smaller shoes. Ah! how comfortable your feet will feel. "TIZ" is a delight. "TIZ" is harmless.

Get a 25-cent box of "TIZ" now at any drugstore or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

A journalist who wanted to go from Cattaraugus, in Australia, to Montenegro recently, but had no passport, solved the difficulty in an amusing fashion. At an hotel where he was lunching, the story runs, he explained his difficulty to the head waiter. The latter picked up the hotel menu and said—"This is the only passport you will need. Every time you are asked to produce it, just hand the official a packet of tobacco." Armed with his menu-passport, says the Paris correspondent of the Mail, the journalist did as he had been advised. The Montenegro customs officers gravely went through the menu, glancing at the traveller from time to time to see if the "description" tallied, and then with a bow restored the document and told him to proceed. The first dishes on the hotel menu were: "Calf's head, pig's trotters, shoulder of mutton."

LABOR SITUATION IS BEFORE THE ALDERMEN

Urgency of Commencing Cemetery Project is Presented by Alderman Sargent

At the meeting of the streets committee of the city council yesterday afternoon Mayor Stewart laid before the aldermen the suggestions placed before him by the deputation from the Trades and Labor council on Thursday week. He prefaced the matter by saying that it was the fairest statement of the labor case he had heard.

The various points which were reported in the Times on June 19 were stated by his worship. He mentioned the desire for a general labor bureau, or rather a registry of unemployment in order to secure data on the labor situation. The deputation had also desired assurances regarding possible public works, and had for check on immigration into Victoria, holding that any influx into the city aggravated the labor situation existing here.

Ald. Cuthbert asked whether the deputation had requested the regular rate of wages on the proposed works, or whether the other men were willing to regard such works as relief works. The mayor said that that point had not been discussed.

In answer to Ald. Sargent the mayor said he thought it might be possible to spend money on park improvements. He doubted if the city could borrow more money for street works this year.

Ald. Sargent, chairman of the cemetery committee, thought it would be desirable to prepare a new cemetery, as one must be acquired soon. He was not prepared to report yet on a scheme, but a considerable amount of preliminary labor would be involved in grading. He hoped the council would take the matter up.

Answering Ald. Fullerton, Ald. Sargent said a number of sites had been inspected. If the aldermen would give some information the committee could proceed in a definite way. One or two suitable sites for cemetery purposes had been offered.

Ald. Todd proposed that the matter should be taken up immediately after the Johnson Street Bridge by-law had been submitted.

Ald. McNeill believed it would be better to wait till the annual election. He did not think the council should announce where it would locate the cemetery.

Ald. Dilworth opposed the idea of securing a cemetery by stealth. There was no harm in people knowing where it would be. The Ross Bay cemetery was rapidly filling.

Ald. Okell considered that the Johnson street bridge should have primary consideration. Ald. Sargent reminded Ald. McNeill that the cemetery project had been initiated by him, when chairman of the committee. He believed that the cost of sites would not be less in a few years than at present.

Ald. Cuthbert pleaded for a lawn cemetery on modern lines. The Johnson street bridge, however, must be pressed immediately, in order to have the question pushed to an issue. It was a problem to bring the parties together. Still there existed no outstanding difficulty, and it could reasonably be expected that the by-law would be brought down within two weeks.

The debate was adjourned without the passage of any resolution on the subject of labor conditions, but the alderman undertook to give consideration to the matter.

SIX O'CLOCK CLOSING

Johnson Street Storekeepers Protest Against the Proposed Compulsory Closing Hour.

A petition from a number of merchants was presented at the meeting of the streets committee of the city council yesterday afternoon. It protested against the compulsory closing of stores at 6 p. m. on Mondays to Fridays inclusive. Most of the signatures were those of storekeepers on Johnson street and vicinity.

V. W. Taylor, who presented the petition, said that he had been asked to sign it by a number of his fellow storekeepers, and at least one-third of the business was done on that street after 6 p. m. The petition had been prepared in the last 24 hours. Either the merchants would go out of business or there would be litigation if the proposal to close at 6 were carried.

The committee referred the matter to the city council, to take up in connection with the Shops Closing Regulation by-law.

IS NEARLY FULL.

Ross Bay Cemetery, Except For Two Reserves, Will Be Full in July, 1915.

The brief discussion at the meeting of the streets committee of the city council yesterday regarding the necessity of providing a new cemetery draws attention to the fact that the Ross Bay cemetery, except the reserves for the Anglican and the Roman Catholic churches, will be full by July 1, 1915. As it is estimated that it will take six months to obtain a suitable ground for burying and to grade the necessary land, the chairman of the committee holds that no time is to be lost in getting the matter in hand.

Alderman Sargent thinks that about one hundred acres will be required. The present cemetery is about 33 acres in extent.

The famous cemeteries at Mt. Auburn and Forest Hills, Boston; Greenwood, in Brooklyn, and Woodlawn, New York, are examples of what can be done in the way of incorporating landscape gardening and monumental construction in cemetery plans. When Victoria comes to carry out its scheme it is understood that an attempt will be made to have a more picturesque burial ground than the low situation at Ross Bay cemetery per-

Meetings Next Week.
Monday—Victoria lodge, No. 1.
Thursday—Dominion lodge, No. 4.

No Meetings.
There being five Tuesdays in this month there will be no meeting of Vancouver Encampment next week. On account of Wednesday being a holiday, there will be no meeting of Columbia lodge next week.

Columbia Lodge, No. 2.
At the meeting of this lodge on Wednesday evening last Bros. R. Hall, P. G. M., J. Wilby, P. G., and A. Henderson, P. G. M., were elected trustees, and the election of delegates to the board of union resulted in the election of Bros. A. Henderson, P. G. M., R. Hall, P. G., J. Wilby, P. G., N. L. Dunn, P. G., and J. Hay, P. G.

Dominion Lodge, No. 4.
Bro. W. H. Cullin, P. G. M., J. Bell, P. G., R. Anderson, P. G., H. E. Morris, J. Milligan, P. G., were elected delegates to the board of union from Dominion lodge, last Thursday evening.

Bro. W. H. Cullin, P. G. M., T. Graham, P. G., and A. Shaver, P. G., were elected trustees.
Canton Victoria, No. 2.
The regular meeting of this lodge was held last night, and much routine business transacted.

Victoria Lodge, No. 1.
At the meeting of this lodge on Monday evening next the election of trustees and delegates to the board of union will be held.

Bro. Geo. Thompson III.
Bro. Geo. Thompson, the popular noble grand of Victoria lodge was operated on at the Jubilee hospital on Thursday last for appendicitis, and the members are pleased to hear that he is progressing very satisfactorily.

Colfax Rebekah Lodge, No. 1.
The large number present at this lodge last Tuesday evening had the pleasure of witnessing a very pleasant feature of the meeting. At the conclusion of the business, and while the lodge was in session, Sister Simpson, F. N. G., was presented with a handsome cut glass desk lamp, the gift of the members of the degree team, who wished to show in a practical manner their appreciation of the valuable services rendered by Sister Simpson as team captain during the past few months. Sister Pilgrim, N. G., read the presentation address, and Sister Forener, V. G., presented the token of regard to Sister Simpson on behalf of the team. The gift came as a complete surprise to Sister Simpson, who, in a few appropriate words, expressed the pleasure she experienced in receiving from the team the handsome gift, which demonstrated to her very decisively that her work as team captain had been appreciated by the members.

Sister Simpson's captaincy of the team had much to do with Colfax lodge making such a splendid showing in the recent competition, the team securing 94 marks out of a possible 100. The position of team captain is a most difficult one to fill, requiring qualifications which only a few possess, and the presentation to Sister Simpson came from a worthy team to a worthy captain.

Sister Simpson was not the only one who got a surprise last Tuesday evening. Bro. J. Seguin had provided three prizes for members of the lodge. The sisters were all provided with slips of paper on which to write their names. These were all put in a hat, and three names drawn for the prizes. Sister C. Carpenter received first prize, Sister Brennan secured second, and Sister Maclean third prize.

The election of officers at this session resulted as follows: N. G., A. Forener; V. G., B. Bowers; recording secretary, E. Stewart; financial secretary, A. Richards; treasurer, M. Phillips. The officers will be installed by Sister A. Lorimer, D. D. P., on the evening of July 14.

The membership of this lodge at this time is 263, a considerable gain over the previous term.

I think it is high time for all those men in the three kingdoms to whom religion is not only the supreme force to creative evolution, but the sovereign authority in human life, to end this horrible political brawl and begin a religious settlement. And I can think of no greater glory for the Church of England at this hour than to solve the Irish question in this holy way. The bugles have been blowing long enough. It is time for the Angelus to sound.—Harold Begbie.

UNBELIEF AND INHUMANITY.

By W. A. Candler, D.D., LL.D., Bishop Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Moses went to deliver Israel from bondage after he had seen the vision of Jehovah at the burning bush. His demand upon Pharaoh to let Israel go was met by the abrupt reply, "I know not the Lord, neither will I let Israel go." (Exodus 5:2) In the response of the Egyptian despot to the man of God is disclosed the source of "man's inhumanity to man." He flatly declared that since he was ignorant of God, he would not liberate the Israelites from bondage. Ignoring the God of Israel he had no respect for the descendants of Jacob except as they could serve industrial and political ends in his kingdom. And this is always the case; when men lose sight of the relations of their fellowmen to God, they proceed to depreciate their religious value and use them for their own earthly and selfish ends. Pity perishes when God is no longer seen.

While it is true that some men professing religion have been cruel, and some unbelievers have been humane, the fact remains nevertheless that with the generality of men human rights are despised just in proportion as the sense of God fades away from the heart. The claims of mankind are recognized when God is regarded in the soul.

It was no meaningless incident that after the great spiritual power manifested at Pentecost, the early Christians "sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need." (Acts 2:45)

Inhumanity prevailed over all "that hard Pagan world" into which Christianity was first with its ministry of mercy. The stoical philosophy, the best of the time, even as elaborated by one like Seneca, declared sympathetic pity a vice of the mind. In sharp contrast with such a heartless sentiment is the conduct of the Archdeacon Laurentius, who when called upon by the prefect of Rome for the treasures of the Roman church, presented under the colonnades the poor, the sick and crippled whom it had sheltered and nourished.

True adoration of God inspires warm affection for men. The worshipful act of Mary when she anointed her Lord has yielded more benevolence to the poor than all the calculating schemes of all the objecting Judases who have ever lived.

"The Bible and a knowledge of the Bible are both essential to the salvation of this country."—Mark A. Matthews, D.D., Past Moderator General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.

HOW CHRISTIANITY CONQUERED. By His Eminence James Cardinal Gibbons.

Alexander the Great, the most successful perhaps of ancient captains, subdued kingdoms by wading through the blood of his fellowman. By the sword he conquered and by the sword he kept his subjects in bondage. But a scarcely was he laid in his tomb when his empire was dissolved, and his subjects shook off the yoke that had been forced upon them.

The apostles, in fine, men quite without those qualifications which are commonly thought to be essential to success in any great enterprise.

Well indeed could St. Paul exclaim: "The foolish things of the world hath God chosen to confound the wise; and the weak things of the world hath God chosen to confound the strong; and the base things of the world, and the things which are despised hath God chosen, and the things that are not, that He might bring to naught those things which are; that no flesh may glory in his sight."

If the gospel had been propagated by the power of Tiberius Caesar and the governors of the Roman provinces, the world could reasonably say: "There is no miracle here, for Christianity was established not by the finger of God, but by the might and majesty of kings."

Or if armies had been sent to force the new religion upon the world men could say with truth: "There is no marvel here; the Christian faith was propagated, not by the sword of the Spirit, but by the arm of the flesh."

Of it the orators, statesmen and philosophers, the historians and poets had united with voice and pen to champion the cause of the infant church, the world could say that there was nothing supernatural in all that; that the gospel was recommended not by the folly of the cross, but by the "persuasive words of human wisdom."

But when to the personal insignificance of the apostles and the austerity of their doctrine is added the violent opposition which they met at every step from the Jewish and the gentile world; we are lost in wonder and admiration at the success of their mission.

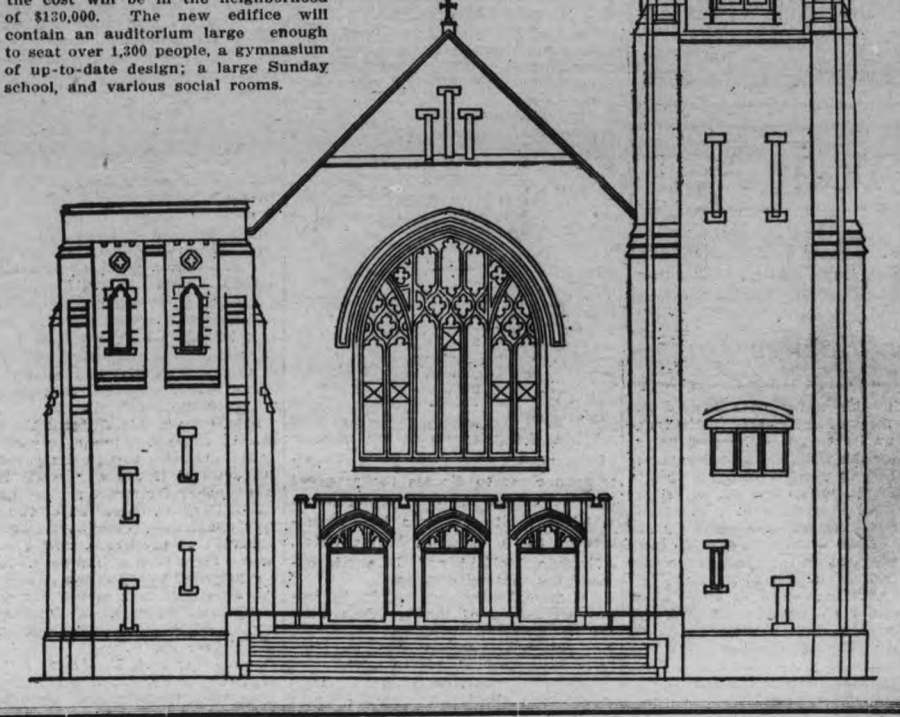

Upwards of fourteen hundred years ago St. Augustine proposed to the cavillers of his time an argument which has greater cogency now than it had even then. Either, he says, the Christian religion was propagated by miracles or without them. If the former is true, the church is manifestly divine; if, however, the world was converted without miracles, this of itself would be a miracle so stupendous that no other could be compared with it.

"The Bible is the only book that unfolds to us the realities of eternity."—Sir Matthew Hale.

Splendid New Edifice Soon To Be Erected in Victoria

Front view of new First Presbyterian church to be erected on Quadra street. The contract for the building of this edifice was awarded recently to Stevens Brothers, who will proceed with the work almost immediately, the contract calling for completion by March 1, 1915. The new building will be of perpendicular Gothic style of architecture, a special feature of the exterior design being the big front window as shown in the accompanying picture. The plans were drawn by J. C. M. Keith.

The funds for the building of this costly edifice have been almost entirely raised, and the various institutions of the church are providing most of the furnishings for the interior. With the building already being used, which is to be converted into a Sunday school when the larger structure is complete, the cost will be in the neighborhood of $120,000. The new edifice will contain an auditorium large enough to seat over 1,300 people, a gymnasium of up-to-date design; a large Sunday school, and various social rooms.

Our mental and physical natures unite in forming one personality.

INSPIRATION OF THE GREAT ARTISTS. By R. S. MacArthur, D.D., LL.D., President Baptist World Alliance.

The Bible abounds in appeals to the finer sensibilities, and arouses the noblest aesthetic elements in our nature. It throbs with human sympathy, and is in touch everywhere with nature. It has been truly said that there is more of nature in the book of Psalms than in all the writings of the Greek and the Latin poets.

It will readily be admitted that great Greek sculptors lived and won enduring fame without the direct teachings of the Bible; but it is also to be acknowledged that the sculpture which is inspired by the Bible contains loftier conceptions and makes stronger appeals to our nobler natures, than do the works of those earlier sculptors. They found their chief employment in illustrating physical perfection and beauty; but Christian sculptors incarnate spiritual and divine thoughts.

But for the Bible, Angelo's "Moses," Canova's "Repentant Magdalen," and Thorwaldsen's "Christ and the Apostles," would have been impossible. But for the Bible, Raphael's "Transfiguration" never would have been conceived. When Raphael would perpetuate his name to unborn generations he must ascend "the holy mount," stand in the supernatural glory, and gaze on the transfigured Christ. As the "Transfiguration" was his greatest, so it was his last work. He died in early manhood, with the "Transfiguration" on his heart and brain. That picture was carried in the funeral procession to his grave.

To the Bible we are indebted for Angelo's "Last Judgment," Da Vinci's "Last Supper," Correggio's "Nativity," for the works of Titian, Holman Hunt, Dore and many others.

The Bible gave all these artists inspiration to work out their lofty conceptions. If you were to take out of halls of statuary, galleries of paintings and great libraries all the sculptures, all the paintings and all the books which the Bible has suggested the world would lose some of its choicest treasures.

This led to a closer study of the word, and there we learn that Christ had a divine nature. He was God. The human nature did not reach up and take hold of the divine, but the divine stooped down and took up the human. As the Nicene creed says: "God of God, light of light, very God of very God." Peter's testimony was: "Thou art Christ, the son of the Living God."

The Bible teaches that Christ had a human nature; not the appearance of a man but a real man with a body and a rational soul. His life, His work and His death all show this fact. Paul speaks of "the man Christ Jesus."

The Bible also teaches us that there was a oneness of Christ's person. The two natures unite in one person; unmixed, not blending one with the other; unimpairing, neither one nature interfering with the other; inseparable, neither one performing its functions in the absence of the other. These two natures unite in forming a distinct and unique personality—a divine-human personality, such as the world had never seen and never will see again because there will be no need for such a being again. This oneness is feebly expressed in our own personal

THE GOD-MAN. By H. L. Yaegeer, D.D., President of the Bible furnishes biographies of a number of the greatest men who ever lived: Moses, Noah, Solomon, David, Paul; what a list of notables! But it gives the life and works of the greatest man who ever lived, Jesus Christ, son of God as well as son of man.

A semi-conscious need of a human, personal Saviour has been the experience of the race. It is clearly seen in the ancient pagan world. Pagan gods are largely in the form of men. In Jewish history, the very keynote of the promise was, "The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head." The incarnation brought not a new theory or principle into the world, but a man. God became man.

The person of Christ has been a great theme of study for the past nineteen centuries. At the great church councils at Nice in the year 325, at Chalcedon in 451, at Constantinople in 680, the principal theme at all was the person of Christ.

This led to a closer study of the word, and there we learn that Christ had a divine nature. He was God. THE GOD-MAN. By H. L. Yaegeer, D.D., President of the Bible furnishes biographies of a number of the greatest men who ever lived: Moses, Noah, Solomon, David, Paul; what a list of notables! But it gives the life and works of the greatest man who ever lived, Jesus Christ, son of God as well as son of man.

A semi-conscious need of a human, personal Saviour has been the experience of the race. It is clearly seen in the ancient pagan world. Pagan gods are largely in the form of men. In Jewish history, the very keynote of the promise was, "The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head." The incarnation brought not a new theory or principle into the world, but a man. God became man.

The person of Christ has been a great theme of study for the past nineteen centuries. At the great church councils at Nice in the year 325, at Chalcedon in 451, at Constantinople in 680, the principal theme at all was the person of Christ.

This led to a closer study of the word, and there we learn that Christ had a divine nature. He was God. The human nature did not reach up and take hold of the divine, but the divine stooped down and took up the human. As the Nicene creed says: "God of God, light of light, very God of very God." Peter's testimony was: "Thou art Christ, the son of the Living God."

The Bible teaches that Christ had a human nature; not the appearance of a man but a real man with a body and a rational soul. His life, His work and His death all show this fact. Paul speaks of "the man Christ Jesus."

The Bible also teaches us that there was a oneness of Christ's person. The two natures unite in one person; unmixed, not blending one with the other; unimpairing, neither one nature interfering with the other; inseparable, neither one performing its functions in the absence of the other. These two natures unite in forming a distinct and unique personality—a divine-human personality, such as the world had never seen and never will see again because there will be no need for such a being again. This oneness is feebly expressed in our own personal

8.—The Hanging of Cultus George

The way led steeply up through deep, powdery snow that was unmarked by sled-track or moccasin impression. Smoke, in the lead, pressed the fragile crystals down under his flat, short snow-shoes. The task required lungs and muscle, and he hung himself into it with all his strength.

Behind, on the surface he packed, strained the string of six dogs, the steam-jets of their breathing attesting their labor and the lowness of the temperature. Between the wheel-dog and the sled toiled Shorty, his weight divided between the guiding gee-pole and the haul, for he was pulling with the dogs. Every half-hour he and Smoke exchanged places, for the snow-shoe work was even more arduous than that of the gee-pole.

This was their sixth day out from the lively camp of Muclic on the Yukon. And now they were breasting the big divide, past the Bald Buttes, where the way would lead them down Porcupine creek to the middle reaches of Milk river. Higher up Milk river, it was fairly rumored, were deposits of copper. And this was their goal—a hill of pure copper, half a mile to the right and up the first creek after Milk river issued from a deep gorge to now across a heavily timbered stretch of bottom.

Smoke was in the lead, and the small scattered spruce-trees were becoming scarcer and smaller, when he saw one, dead and bone-dry, that stood in their path. There was no need for speech. His glance to Shorty was acknowledged by a stentorian "Whoa!" The dogs stood in the traces till they saw Shorty begin to undo the sled-lashings with an axe; whereupon the animals dropped in the snow and curled into balls, the bush of each tail curved to cover four padded feet and an ice-rimmed muzzle.

In twenty minutes from the time they halted, the meal was ready to eat. "About forty below," Shorty mumbled through a mouthful of beans. "Hope it don't get colder—or warmer, neither. It's just right for trail-breaking."

Smoke did not answer. His own mouth full of beans, he had glanced to the lead-dog, lying half a dozen feet away. That gray and frosty wolf was gazing at him with the infinite watchfulness and yearning that glimmers and hazes so often in the eyes of Northland dogs. Smoke knew it well, but never got over the unfathomable wonder of it.

As if to shake off the hypnotism, he set down his plate and coffee-cup, went to the sled, and began opening the dried-fish sack.

"Hey!" Shorty expostulated. "What you doin'?"

"Breaking all law, custom, precedent, and trail usage," Smoke replied. "I'm going to feed the dogs in the middle of the day—just this once. Bright there has been talking to me, telling me all untellable things with those eyes of his."

Shorty laughed skeptically. "Oh, if it's a hunch, go to it. A man's always got to follow his hunches."

"It isn't a hunch, Shorty. Bright just sort of got on my imagination for a couple of twigs. He told me more in one minute with those eyes of his than I could read in the books in a thousand years. His eyes were awar' with the secrets of life. They were just squirming and wriggling there. The trouble is I almost got them, and then I didn't. I'm no wiser than I was before, but I was near them."

"Boiled down into simple American, you got a hunch," Shorty insisted. "Something's goin' to happen before the day is out. You'll see. And them dried fish'll have a bearin'."

"You've got to show me," said Smoke.

"No, I ain't, the day'll take care of itself an' show you. Now listen to what I'm tellin' you. I got a hunch myself out of your hunch. I'll bet eleven ounces against three ornery toothpicks I'm right."

"You bet the toothpicks, and I'll bet the ounces," Smoke returned.

"Nope. That'd be plain robbery. I win. I know a hunch when it tickles me. Before the day's out something'll happen, an' them fish'll have a meanin'."

II.

An hour later they creased the divide, dipped down past the Bald Buttes through a sharp elbow-canyon, and took the steep open slope that dropped into Porcupine creek. Shorty, in the lead, stopped abruptly, and Smoke whooped the dogs. Beneath them, coming up, was a procession of humans, scattered and dragged, a quarter of a mile long.

"They move like it was a funeral," Shorty noted.

"They've no dogs," said Smoke.

"Yep; there's a couple of men pullin' on a sled."

"See that fellow fall down? There's something the matter, Shorty, and there must be two hundred of them."

"Look at 'em stagger as if they was soused. There goes another."

"It's a whole tribe. There are children there."

"Smoke, I win," Shorty proclaimed. "A hunch is a hunch, an' you can't beat it. There she comes. Look at her!—surge!—up a lot of corpses!"

The mass of Indians, at sight of the two men, had raised a weird cry of joy and accelerated its pace.

"They're sure tolerable woosy," commented Shorty. "See 'em fallin' down in lumps and bunches."

"Look at the face of that first one," Smoke said. "It's starvation—that's what's the matter with them. They've eaten their dogs."

"What'll we do? Run for it?"

"And leave the sled and dogs?" Smoke demanded reproachfully.

"They'll starve at us if we don't. They look hungry enough for it. Hello, old skookiks. What's wrong with you? Don't look at that dog that way. No cookin'-pot for him—savvy?"

The forerunners were arriving and crowding about them moaning and plainting in an unfamiliar jargon. To Smoke the picture was grotesque and horrible. It was famine unmistakable. Their faces, hollow-cheeked and skin-stretched, were so many death-heads.

More and more arrived and crowded about, until Smoke and Shorty were hemmed in by the wild crew. Their ragged garments of skin and fur were cut and slashed away, and Smoke knew the reason for it when he saw a wizened child on a squaw's back that sucked and chewed a strip of filthy fur.

"Keep off there—keep back!" Shorty yelled, falling back on English after futile attempts with the little Indian he did know.

Bucks and squaws and children tottered and swayed on shaking legs and continued to urge in, their mad eyes swimming with weakness and burning with ravens' desire. A woman, moaning, staggered past Shorty and fell with spread and grasping arms on the sled. An old man followed her, panting and gasping, with trembling hands striving to cast off the sled lashings and get at the grub-sacks beneath. A young man, with a naked knife, tried to rush in, but was flung back by Smoke. The whole mass pressed in upon them, and the fight was on.

At first Smoke and Shorty shoved and thrust and threw back. Then used the butt of the dog-whip and their fists on the food-mad crowd. And all this against a background of moaning and wailing women and children. Here and there, in a dozen places, the sled-lashings were cut. Men crawled in on their bellies, regardless of a rain of kicks and blows, and tried to drag out the grub. These had to be picked up bodily and flung back. And such was their weakness that they fell continually, under the slightest pressures or shoves. Yet they made no attempt to injure the two men who defended the sled.

It was the utter weakness of the Indians that saved Smoke and Shorty from being overborne. In five minutes the wall of understanding, on-struggling Indians had been changed to heaps of fallen ones that moaned and gibbered in the snow, and cried and snivelled at their staring, swimming eyes focused on the grub that meant life to them and that brought the slave to their lips. And behind it all arose the wailing of the women and children.

"This is terrible," Smoke muttered. "I'm all het up," Shorty replied. "I'm real sweaty. An' now what 'r we goin' to do with this ambulation outfit?"

Smoke shook his head, and then the problem was solved for him. An Indian crawled forward, his one eye fixed on Smoke instead of on the sled, and in it Smoke could see the struggle of sanity to assert itself. Shorty remembered having punched the other eye, which was already swollen shut. The Indian raised himself on his elbow and spoke.

"Me Carluk. Me good Siwash. Me savvy Boston man plenty. Me plenty hungry. All people plenty hungry. All people no savvy Boston man. Me savvy Me eat grub now. All people eat grub now. We buy 'm grub. Got 'm plenty gold. No got 'm grub. Summer, salmon no come Milk river. Winter, salmon no come Milk river. Winter, caribou no come. No grub. Me make 'm talk all people. Me tell 'm plenty Boston man come Yukon. Boston man have plenty grub. Boston man like 'm gold. We take 'm gold, got Yukon, Boston man give 'm grub. Plenty gold. Me savvy Boston man like 'm gold."

He began fumbling with wasted fingers at the drawstring of a pouch he took from his belt.

"Too much make 'm noise," Shorty broke in distractedly. "You tell 'm squaw, you tell 'm papoose, shut 'm up mouth."

Carluk turned and addressed the wailing women. Other bucks, listening, raised their voices authoritatively, and slowly the squaws stilled, and stilled the children near to them. Carluk paused from fumbling the drawstrings and held up his fingers many times.

"Him people make 'm die," he said. "And Smoke, following the count, knew that seventy-five of the tribe had starved to death."

"Me buy 'm grub," Carluk said, as he got the pouch open and drew out a large chunk of heavy metal. Others were following his example, and on every side appeared similar chunks. Shorty stared.

"Great Jiminy!" he cried. "Copper! Raw, red copper! An' they think it's gold!"

"And the poor devils bawled everything on it," Smoke muttered. "Look at it. That chunk there weighs forty pounds. They've got hundreds of them. It, and they've carried it when they didn't have strength enough to drag themselves. Look here, Shorty. We've got to feed them."

"Huh! Sounds easy. But how about statistics? You an' me has a month's grub, which is six meals times thirty, which is one hundred an' eighty meals. There's two hundred Indians, with real full-grown appetites. How can we give 'm one meal even?"

"Sure, an' we can't throw 'm down," Shorty agreed. "An' we got two nasty jobs cut out for us, each just about twice as nasty as the other. One of us has got to make a run of it to Muclic an' raise a relief. The other has to stay here an' run the hospital an' most likely be eaten. Don't let it slip your noodle that we've been six days gettin' here; an' travelin' light, an' all played out, it can't be made back in less'n three days."

For a minute Smoke pondered the miles of the way they had come, visioning the miles in terms of time measured by his capacity for exertion. "I can get there to-morrow night," he announced.

"All right," Shorty acquiesced cheerfully. "An' I'll stay an' be eaten."

"But I'm going to take one fish each for the dogs," Smoke explained, "and one meal for myself."

"An' you'll sure need it if you make Muclic to-morrow night."

Smoke, through the medium of Carluk, stated the programme. "Make fire, long fire, plenty fire," he concluded. "Plenty Boston man stop Muclic. Boston man much good. Boston man plenty grub. Five sleeps I name Shorty, very good friend of mine. He stop here. He big boss-savvy."

Carluk nodded and interpreted. "All grub stop here. Shorty, he give 'm grub. He boss-savvy?"

Carluk interpreted, and nods and guttural cries of agreement proceeded from the men.

Smoke remained and managed until the full swing of the arrangement was under way. Those who were able, crawled or staggered in the collecting of fire-wood. Long Indian fires were built that accommodated all. Shorty, aided by a dozen assistants, with a short club handy for the rapping of hungry knuckles, plunged into the cooking.

First, tiny pieces of bacon was distributed all around, and next, a spoonful of sugar to cloy the edge of their razor appetites. Soon, on a circle of fires drawn about Shorty, many pots of beans were boiling, and he, with a wrathful eye for what he called the rangers, was frying and apportioning the thinnest of flapjacks.

"Me for the big cockin'," was his farewell to Smoke. "You just keep a-hikin'. Trot all the way there an' run all the way back. It'll take you to-day an' to-morrow to get there, and you can't be back inside three days more. To-morrow they'll eat the last of the dog-fish, an' then there'll be nary a scrap for three days. You gotta keep a-comin', Smoke. You gotta keep a-comin'."

III.

Midnight had gone a quarter of an hour in the Annie mine. The main room was comfortably crowded, while roaring stoves, combined with lack of ventilation, kept the big room unsanitary warm. The click of chips and the boisterous play at the craps-table furnished a monotonous background of sound to the equally monotonous rumble of men's voices where they sat and stood about and talked in groups and twos and threes. Through the open door that led to the dance-room came the rollicking strains of a Virginia reel, played by a piano and a fiddle.

Cultus George, a big strapping Circle City Irishman, leaned distantly and dourly against the log wall. He was a civilized Indian, if living like a white man connotes civilization; and he was sorely offended, though the offence was of long standing.

For years he had done a white man's work, had done it alongside of white men, and often had done it better than they did. He wore the same pants they wore, the same hearty woollens and heavy shirts. He sported as good a watch as they, parted his short hair on the side, and ate the same food—beans, beans, and flour; and yet he was denied their greatest diversion and reward; namely, whisky.

Cultus George was a money-earner. He had staked claims, and bought and sold claims. He had been grub-staked and he had accorded grub-stakes. Just now he was a dog-musher and freighter, charging twenty-eight cents a pound for the winter haul from Sixty Mile to Muclic—and for bacon thirty-three cents, as was the custom. His pocket was fat with dust. He had the price of many drinks. Yet no barkeeper would serve him. Whisky, the hottest, swiftest, completest gratifier of civilization, was not for him. And he resented this invidious distinction, as he had resented it for years, deeply and he was especially thirsty and resentful this night, while the white men he had so sedulously emulated he hated more bitterly than ever before.

The Virginia reel in the dance-room wound to a wild close. "All couples to the band," was the call. The couples were so promenading through the wide doorway into the main room—the men in furs and moccasins, the women in soft fluffy dresses, silk stockings, and dancing-slippers—when the double storm-doors were thrust open, and Smoke Bellew staggered wearily in.

Eyes centred on him, and silence began to fall. He tried to speak, pulled

"Take up a collection to buy all the grub," said the craps-player. "Fetch a wash-basin somebody. It won't take a minute. An' here's a starter."

He pulled a heavy gold-sack from his pocket, untied the mouth, and poured a stream of coarse dust and nuggets into the basin. A man beside him caught his hand up with a jerk and an oath, elevating the mouth of the sack so as to stop the run of the dust. To a casual eye, six or eight ounces had already run into the basin.

"Don't be a hawk," cried the second man. "You ain't the only one with a poke. Gimme a chance at it."

Men crowded and jostled for the opportunity to contribute, and when they were satisfied, Smoke hefted the heavy basin with both hands and grinned.

"It will keep the whole tribe in grub for the rest of the winter," he said. "Now for the dogs. Five light teams that have some run in them."

A dozen teams were volunteered, and the camp, as a committee of the whole, bickered and debated, accepted and rejected.

As fast as a team was selected, its owner, with half a dozen aids, departed to harness up and get ready.

One team was rejected because it had come in tired that afternoon. One owner contributed his team, but apologetically exposed a bandage ankle that prevented him from driving it. This objection of the crowd that he was played out.

ARE BATTLESHIPS REALLY DOOMED?

WHY SIR PERCY SCOTT BELIEVES THEY ARE

Says Submarine and Aero-plane Have Rendered Them Useless

British exchanges to hand give wide prominence to the controversy which is raging over Admiral Sir Percy Scott's communication in the London Times regarding the ineffectiveness of big warships. Had the views expressed in this letter emanated from the average arm-chair strategist little attention would have been given to them, but Sir Percy Scott has not only shown himself on several occasions to think ahead of his contemporaries but has made good his prophecies. To him the British forces owed the presence of the naval guns at Lough, which saved the situation, if not South Africa. He it was who made possible the advance in marksmanship with heavy guns which has been such an important feature in naval efficiency in late years. To him, too, according to the London Times, it is due that the navy recently was provided with a "director" which has enormously increased the possibility of hitting, at long ranges and enabled salvo firing to be carried out with a precision before unknown. Admiral Scott's letter, a copy of which was sent to the Times, was written in response to an inquiry for his views on the subject of battleship construction. It is as follows:

62 South Audley street,
Grosvenor Square, W., 15th December, 1913.

Dear Sir: In reply to your letter I have seen the correspondence in the press, suggesting building smaller battleships, and also the arguments as to whether two or four battleships should be laid down in 1914.

If we have battleships we must have thick armor on them to keep out the enemy's shot, and we must have speed to give a tactical advantage in bringing our fire on the enemy; these are axioms among naval officers. For battleships our nation and all other nations have very properly decided to have big ships, big guns, thick armor and high speed.

The other question is, are we in 1914 to build two or four battleships? The Little Navyites say two in order to save money; the Big Navyites say four, as they think, save the country. If battleships are of use in saving the country, the Little Navyites are foolish and unpatriotic. If battleships are of no use, then the Big Navyites are wrong in putting the country to the expense of building four more.

The real question to settle before even talking about building more battleships is, "Are they of use or are they not?" For some thousands of years, armed vessels floating on the surface of the water have been used for attack and defence; these vessels to-day vary in size from a canoe containing one man armed with a spear to a 32,000-ton battleship armed with 15 in. guns, and these craft, whether large or small, all float on the water and are visible. In this island, we depend upon our food supply coming from over seas; hence it has been necessary for us to have a large number of armed ships to protect our commerce and to safeguard our food supply. This protecting force or insurance of our country is called the royal navy, and more consists of a large number of ships that swim on the water and can be seen, and a few that swim under the water and cannot be seen.

The introduction of the vessels that swim under water has, in my opinion, entirely done away with the utility of the ships that swim on the top of the water.

The functions of a vessel of war were:

Defensively,

1. To attack ships that come to bombard our ports.

2. To attack ships that come to blockade us.

3. To attack ships conveying a landing party.

4. To attack the enemy's fleet.

5. To attack ships interfering with our commerce.

Offensively,

1. To bombard an enemy's ports.

2. To blockade an enemy.

3. To convey a landing party.

4. To attack the enemy's fleet.

5. To attack the enemy's commerce.

The submarine renders 1, 2, and 3 impossible, as no man-of-war will be able to come even within sight of a coast that is adequately protected by submarines; therefore, the functions of a battleship as regards 1, 2 and 3, both defensively and offensively, have disappeared.

The fourth function of a battleship is to attack an enemy's fleet, but there will be no fleet to attack, as it will not be safe for a fleet to put to sea. This has been demonstrated in all recent manoeuvres both at home and abroad where submarines have been employed and the demonstration should have made us realize that, now that submarines have come in, battleships are of no use either for defensive or offensive purposes, and, consequently, building any more in 1914 will be a misuse of money subscribed by the citizens for the defence of the empire.

As regards the protection of our commerce on the high seas, we must examine who can interfere with it.

Turkey, Greece, Austria and Italy must pass through the narrow Straits of Gibraltar to get at our commerce.

Cyprus, Malta and Gibraltar, well equipped with aeroplanes to observe the enemy's movements, and submarines to attack him, would make access from the Mediterranean very difficult.

Spain and Portugal have ports open to the Atlantic, and could interfere with our commerce, but war with those countries seems very improbable, and they are not very far from Gibraltar.

France from Brest could harass our commerce, but if homeward-bound ships gave that port a wide berth and signalled by wireless if they were attacked, fast cruisers and submarines from Plymouth could be very soon on the spot.

Russia and Germany are very badly placed for interfering with our commerce; to get to the Atlantic they must either run the gauntlet of the Channel, or pass to the North of Scotland, and even if they get out they have nowhere to coal.

America could attack our commerce, but they would have a long way to come.

If by submarines we close access from the North Sea and Mediterranean it is difficult to see how our commerce can be much interfered with.

It has been suggested to me that submarines and aeroplanes could not stop access from the Mediterranean, that a fleet would steam through at night. With aeroplanes that would report the approach of a fleet, and 30 or 40 invisible submarines in the narrow Strait of Gibraltar, trying to pass through them at night would be a very risky operation.

Submarines and aeroplanes have entirely revolutionized naval warfare, no fleet can hide itself from the aeroplane eye, and the submarine can deliver a deadly attack even in broad daylight.

Under these circumstances I can see no use for battleships and very little chance of much employment for fast cruisers. The navy will be entirely changed; naval officers will no longer live on the sea, but either above it or under it, and the strain on their system and nerves will be so great that a very lengthy period of service will not be tolerable; it will be a navy of youth, for we shall require nothing but boldness and daring.

In war time the scouting aeroplanes will always be high above on the lookout, and the submarines in constant readiness, as are the engines at a fire station. If an enemy is sighted, the submarines will be slipped. Whether it be night or day, fine or rough, they must go out to search for their quarry; if they find her, she is doomed, and they give no quarter; they cannot board her and take her as a prize, as in the olden days; they only wait till she sinks, then return home without even knowing the number of human beings that they have sent to the bottom of the ocean.

Will any battleship expose herself to such a dead certainty of destruction? I say, No.

Not only is the open sea unsafe; a battleship is not immune from attack even in a closed harbor, for the so-called protecting boom at the entrance of a harbor, composed of a fleet of submarines commanded by dashing young officers, of whom we have plenty, I would undertake to get through any boom into any harbor, and sink or materially damage all the ships in that harbor.

If a battleship is not safe either on the high seas or in harbor, what is the use of a battleship?

It has been argued to me that if a foreign power destroys our submarines we are at the mercy of his Dreadnoughts. There can be no doubt about the accuracy of this statement, but submarines are difficult to destroy, because it is difficult to attack what you cannot see. A power that sends out ships to look for and destroy submarines will be courting disaster; the submarine when in the water must be kept away from, not looked for.

Submarines will be hauled up on land, with arrangements for instantly launching them when required; they can only be attacked by airships dropping bombs on them.

What we require is an enormous fleet of submarines, airships and aeroplanes, and a few fast cruisers, provided we can find a place to keep them in safety during war time.

It has been argued to me that our enemy will seize some island in the Atlantic, get some fast cruisers there, with plenty of coal, and from this island prey on our commerce. This is ridiculous; the moment we hear of it we send a fleet of submarines towed by an Atlantic liner, she drops them just when in sight of the island, and she brings them back to England when they have sunk everything they found at the island.

If we go to war with a country that is within the striking distance of submarines, I am of opinion that that country will at once look up their Dreadnoughts in some safe harbor; we shall do the same; their aeroplanes and airships will fly over our country; they will know exactly where our ships are, and their submarines will come over and destroy anything and everything that they can get at.

We shall, of course, do the same, but an island with many harbors and much shipping is at a great disadvantage, if the enemy has submarines.

I do not think that the importance of submarines has been fully recognized, neither do I think that it has been realized how completely their advent has revolutionized naval warfare. In my opinion, as the motor-vehicle has driven the horse from the road, so the submarine driven the battleship from the sea.—I am, Yours truly,

PERCY SCOTT.

London Letter

Full Speed Ahead.

BY ARTHUR SCAIFE, J. P.

London, June 12.—The pronouncement at Cricketh that the chancellor of the exchequer the other day has done much to dissipate any doubts which may have existed as to the capacity no less than the intention of the government to complete their self-imposed tasks before going to the country. At times it seemed as if the forces of armed and adroit reaction were to rule supreme and crumple up our parliamentary system like a piece of tissue paper. Assurance has now been given by a prominent member of the cabinet himself, that this is not to be. For which relief much thanks. The wreckers are not to succeed in their designs. The parliamentary machine is to proceed with its task of evolving schemes of social reform and amending the law in existence, but which are not being completed by the government.

As Mr. Lloyd George pointed out, the Parliament act is only now beginning to demonstrate its real utility and he assured his hearers that the government were not going to throw in their hands until they had reaped the harvest which had been sown at the command of the people.

"As to the demand that this parliament should be broken up, the government would do nothing of the kind until all the measures the people had sent them to power to carry were on the statute book." That is an encouraging statement. Every one save Tory reactionaries wants to see these bills passed into law. The Irish question must be settled, practically speaking, it is settled. The plural voter must go. Welsh disestablishment must become an accomplished fact. All these questions, which have been the cause of so much political rancour and ill-feeling for so many years, must be disposed of once for all. What is wanted and must be accomplished is a great and comprehensive clean up in the political field. All old abuses connected with the franchise and with political procedure must be swept away. The power of the wealthy aristocrat must be curtailed. Absolute equality before the law of men as citizens irrespective of their possessions and positions must be established for all time. Not that when these reforms are effected the Liberals will cry halt. They are but preliminary to a greater struggle still, outweighing in importance and significance political abuses and political grievances are economic and social evils. No reform that was ever conceived will be sweeping enough to satisfy Liberalism so long as there are men and women and children throughout the length and breadth of the land lacking any of the necessities of life. No reformer can rest in peace, satisfied with his labors and their results, whilst workers are maimed and killed in our industries at such an appalling rate as they are to-day. Human life is sacred, and consideration for human safety, human comfort, and human advancement should be above and before all other considerations. At present it is not. Men, women and children of the poorer classes are not regarded today by their "betters" as human beings; they are all too often looked upon as raw material out of which profits are to be made. On this point the chancellor spoke with no uncertain voice. He told his hearers at Cricketh that the message of the by-elections was not that the Liberals should stand still, but that the mandate, rightly interpreted, meant "full speed ahead."

The country is not tired of progress and reform. It is weary of the unconsolidable time it takes to get progressive legislation passed through parliament and then translated into beneficent deeds. Wages must be increased; the housing and the health of the people must be improved. The whole question of the land must be dealt with. The face of the country must be changed. Where we have now a sickly, stunted populace crowding in congested towns, we must have a healthy, robust people, well-housed, well-nourished, and protected from the weather and the exploiter by the whole power of the state. The chancellor said that the day of democracy had dawned. Here I think he is a little premature. The day of democracy has not yet dawned. There are streaks of light in the gloom of the east, but the real dawn of democracy has not yet appeared. This is what true Liberals are striving and striving for. The dawn of democracy. It will not for long be delayed, but it cannot be regarded as here whilst Ulstermen can count on the support of the one-time Tory party to aid them in their seditious exploits and threatened rebellion. It cannot be regarded as here whilst political on industrial and agricultural conditions for more than the real and pressing needs of the people. Liberals are looking to the government to cripple the power of the aristocracy and to usher in the day of democracy. When that day comes they expect to see our whole social fabric refashioned and reborn. At present it is scarcely worthy of the name. It is an agglomeration of garish palaces and filthy rookeries; of castles for the rich; of slums for the poor; of beauty and ugliness of virtue and vice. It is a fabric supporting on its pinnacles a class of useless, idle, well-fed drones, who are growing round its base the industrial bees are insufficiently fed. Its glories are great, but its infamies, alas! are by no means small, and it is with the infamous part of it that Liberalism is most concerned. It is concerned with the cause of the poor and the helpless. It wants to see it made impossible for any man to starve to death in the United Kingdom, which makes the proud boast that it is the most civilized nation in the world. It seeks to ensure a reasonable standard of life, a fair living wage, to every labouring man and woman. It wants to prevent the moneyed man with no conscience from having the power to grind to death the honorable man with no money. In short, it wants a fairer distribution of the nation's wealth and political equality for all men before the law. To insure the initiation of these and kindred measures the government must press on to the bitter end without fear or hesitation. It must clear the way for more far-reaching and deeper social reforms. It must usher in, not the dawn, but the noon day of British democracy. Such is the mission of modern Liberalism, and who shall say that it is an ignoble one!

The Season.

There are lamentations in the London newspapers about the decline of the season and the absence of money. The season is always declining and money is always absent somewhere. Yet to the ordinary social observer there seem this year to be more money to spend more money to spend it than ever. True, there have been a good many checks—royal mourning, cold weather, deplorable public misfortunes, and it was rumored, an indisposition of the king, which out of consideration for trade and regard for people's pleasure was carefully kept secret. In spite of this the season which is now just half over has outshone previous years in all-round prosperity. Possibly there have not been so many great social affairs as in some seasons one remembers, but the number of smaller gatherings has been extraordinary. There have never been more merry balls or so many dinners before them. Time was when twenty-four was a "monster dinner" now it is insignificant. Before a smart dance the other day the hostess in her own house had seventy people to dine. Balls are on the same scale. To make a success of a Mayfair dance one must ask at least four hundred men as a recognized axiom of this year. For lack of this precaution a ball at one of the fashionable hotels had to be closed down at about two in the morning not long since. Prosperity seems to be in the air. Everyone with a "good address" has a number of new acquaintances, including the people who would never have dreamt of keeping a neighborly brougham ten years ago. Nearly everyone somehow has fine jewels. The court is gay in courtly way than it has been for years. It must, of course, be low tide somewhere in the West End, but all the superficial appearances point the other way.

The Reassembling of Parliament.

A significant point about the reassembling of the House of Commons on Tuesday was the absence of prophecy in the lobby. Among Union-

PARALYSIS AND LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA

The most dreaded results of neglected nervous diseases—Study this chart and the symptoms stated here to learn if you are in danger—
DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will cure you.

To understand paralysis and locomotor ataxia, which is paralysis of the limbs, and their causes, it is well to remember that every movement of the body or its members is due to the contraction of muscle, which can only take place under the influence of nerve force. As this all-important nerve force is created in the nerve centres of the brain and spinal cord, and conducted along wire-like nerve fibres to the various parts of the body, any derangement of the brain, spinal cord or nerve fibres may result in paralysis or loss of the power of movement.

Paralysis, then, is the natural result of all neglected nervous diseases. If you find yourself nervous and irritable, over-sensitive to light, sound and motion, addicted to continual movement or tapping of the fingers, twitching of the muscles, sudden startings and jerking of the limbs during sleep; if you have nervous headaches or dyspepsia, are unable to sleep or rest, feel downhearted and discouraged, and unfit to fight the battles of life; if your nerves are weak and exhausted, your blood thin and watery, you have every reason to fear paralysis or at least some part of the body, and consequent suffering and helplessness.

Paralysis can always be prevented, and partial paralysis actually cured, by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The time to begin treatment is when any of the above-mentioned symptoms become apparent. These are indications of a degeneration of the nerve cells, and when nerve force becomes exhausted, paralysis is bound to follow.

acts on the system in an entirely different way to ordinary medicines. It is neither a stimulant to whip tired nerves to renewed activity, nor a narcotic, or opiate, to deaden the nerves. On the contrary, it is a food cure, which forms new, red corpuscles in the blood and creates new nerve cells. Every day it is bringing back health, strength and vitality to scores and hundreds who have become discouraged through the failure of doctors and other treatments to cure them. Why not get started on the way to health at once by using this great food cure? Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., LIMITED, Toronto. held about finding a short way with the perpetrators of arson and sacrilege and destroyers of public treasures, and particularly with those who provide the funds for the carrying out of these outrages. The matter is indeed being discussed with a certain lack of sense of proportion, but when it comes to actual measures it will be seen that there will be no panic measures that are open to abuse. The government do, of course, confuse the small band of female marauders with the great army of women who constitutionally demand the vote.

Holiday Courses For Foreigners. One of the most fruitful sources of international goodwill is the interchange of visits and education which is carried out during the holiday season. The board for the extension of university training here has adopted these plans for several years, and the Modern Language Association is also responsible for similar efforts. The board announce two courses for the present year, one in London from July 13 to August 7, and a second at Ramsgate from August 10 to August 28. These courses for foreigners are planned in such a way as to be of special value to teachers in secondary schools and to those who are preparing for the teaching profession. But they by no means appeal only to this class of student, and advantage is taken of the facilities offered by many persons who desire to increase their knowledge of foreign languages. It is interesting to note that phonetics are used in the system of instruction, and intending students are expected to make themselves familiar with the mode of transcription adopted by the International Phonetic Association. At Ramsgate there will be courses in the phonetics of English, French and German, also on methods of modern language teaching, modern English education, and English and French literature. Arrangements will also be made for social gatherings and visits to places of interest. All this admirable work in the promotion of right understanding and good feeling between the nations.

A rather amusing story is told of a certain spinner in a Yorkshire factory, that one day whilst following his employment he complained of having much pain with his thumb. In the course of a few days the spinner noticed a lump coming, and decided to go to the panel doctor. Arriving at the surgery, the spinner took a seat to await his turn. The doctor, having finished with the previous patient, called out "Next, please." The young man boldly walked into the doctor's presence, and laid the case before him. After a careful examination of the lump, the doctor asked the young man a few questions. Finally the doctor asked him, "How long has the lump been there?" The spinner replied, "About three days, sir." "Has it come itself?" he again asked. The spinner holding out the thumb on the other hand, rather innocently but bluntly replied—"No, I've browt t'other with it!"

BABY COVERED WITH RASH

From Head to Foot. Itched and Burned. Disfiguring. Face and Arms Worst. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

Legere Corner, Moncton, N. B.—"When my baby was five months old he had a rash which would trouble him very much. The rash was very bad and he was covered from head to foot. I got no rest day or night with him. It would itch and burn so much that he used to scratch till he used to bring the blood and then it would turn to a matted sore which disfigured him. The worst was his face and arms."

"I tried a good many different soaps and ointments to no use; he got no better. But after a while I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment and had only used them two or three times when I saw a great change. The sores dried up and came off and he was cured." (Signed) Mrs. George French, May 26, 1913.

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. After that time use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send postcard to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

VISITED NAPOLEON

M. Houssaye Discovers an Authentic Interview in Guernsey Paper of That Year

It is just 100 years ago that Napoleon took possession of his miniature island empire of Elba, and an appropriate discovery has been made on the anniversary by Henri Houssaye. This is what the Frenchman declares to be the earliest example of modern journalism known to be in existence. It is a little paper published on the Island of Guernsey called The Political Mirror, and was "printed at the foot of the Pollet and for sale at the house of Japt. Chanlon; subscription 3 shillings a year, and for detached advertising sheet 3 pence extra."

This paper, declares M. Houssaye, notwithstanding its miniature size, was, to all intents and purposes, a modern journal. It had various articles of authentic news, and a comparison of its columns with those of the great papers of London and Paris will show that it was far ahead of its times. What particularly struck M. Houssaye was the current news concerning Napoleon. He finds that this appeared in the Political Mirror three days and sometimes a week before it did in the London papers. He also found in the columns of the little island paper the first modern interview. It is with Napoleon, then on the island, and the "reporter's" name is Silverthorpe.

"You are English?" inquired Napoleon.

"Yes, Sir."

And, continues Mr. Silverthorpe, "the sovereign of Elba delivers himself up to his interrogator. He speaks walking up and down; he judges and his words have the accent of sincerity. He said:

"Metternich thinks himself a diplomat, but he is not. He is a liar and an enormous liar. The king of Prussia thinks himself a sage. He is only a corporal. Still, he is a good man, a very good man."

"Then he interrupts himself with the question:

"Would they stone me in England?"

Mr. Silverthorpe responded that they would not, and, being a good reporter, profited by his agreeable reply to ask Napoleon which side he favored in politics and what hopes he had for the future. Napoleon, solemnly answered:

"To be the head of the continent and of all Europe."

"And then?"

"To force the English to be just."

He thereupon returned to his judgment of men. According to Mr. Silverthorpe: "He averages himself, in one word, He is too severe with Murat, who would die for him," and he said:

"Murat is a man who has no head, nor a single military idea if it be not on the day of the battle. When he receives orders he salutes and gallops off. He is a god until 5 o'clock at night."

"And the pope?"

"The pope is an old monk."

And so the interview goes on, and after the interview, in subsequent copies of the paper, appear the details of the emperor's flights from Elba to his march to Paris, and Waterloo. The last is curiously described in the issue of June 19, 1815, through the following dispatch:

"Yesterday, about 5 in the evening, Louis XVIII. received a dispatch from the Duke of Wellington, written in haste. Here is an extract:

"Bonaparte was entirely repulsed at Genappe. It was a bloody battle, and the Duke of Brunswick was killed at the head of the brave Brunswickers. The English troops suffered extremely."

"The Duke of Wellington wrote from the field of battle that he and Blucher were in pursuit of Bonaparte."

Some weeks later the Mirror prints a dispatch sent to Talleyrand to Lord Castlereagh which runs:

"I have the honor to inform your lordship that Napoleon Bonaparte not being able to escape the English cruisers and the advance guards on shore, took the resolution to go on board the English vessel Bellerophon, under Capt. Maitland."

Later when the fallen emperor was on board the Northumberland the Mirror has another interview with him. This time the paper has two representatives, Lord Lowther and the Hon. Mr. Lyttleton. The former records the conversation in the following manner:

"Mr. Lyttleton interrogates him and I set it down so as to leave the former free of mind. Now as before the defeat, Napoleon answers distinctly, always judging men and things as they are. He does not believe in a long duration of the Bourbons, and he said:

"The Duchesse of Angouleme is the only man of the family. In France they need a man like me. Louis XVIII. is too fond of good cheer and bright sayings."

"We recalled to him the saying of the king: 'The heart of the tyrant (Boney) is worth more than his head,' and remarked: 'The king does not think much of you.'

"Neither do I of him," replied Napoleon, and he scornfully added, in alluding to his return from Elba:

"I waged war against Louis XVIII. and conquered him with a few hundred men."

"We mentioned that Alexander, the Czar of Tilsit, had tried to bribe him, and he said:

"God delivered me from the Russians, and he looked at Bertrand and shrugged his shoulders, and then added:

"In fifty years Europe will be either republican or Cossack."

Then came the last words of the interview with the fallen Caesar inspired by the boats crowded with spectators surrounding the ship.

"Oh," he says, "there is a great deal of curiosity. One likes to see 'le bete curieux' in order to say that one has seen him. Bah! All things must end."

AMPLE FOR PURPOSES

Seamen's Institute Will Have Public Hall and Two Reception Rooms on Ground Floor.

The new Seamen's Institute which is to be erected on Kingston street is to contain ample room for all the social activities in connection with the entertainment of visiting seamen in the port of Victoria. The plans drawn up by J. C. M. Keith, the architect for the new building, provide for at least three large rooms on the main floor, including a hall 30x39 feet, sufficiently big to seat 150 people. This hall will be provided with a stage and dressing-rooms, and will have an entirely separate entrance so that it may be used either by the institute or by the public. The two other reception rooms on the ground floor will be a lounge, 15x23 feet, connected, through an archway, with a reading room 17x18. There will be an open fire-place in the latter, and the furnishings will make the room one of the most comfortable in the building.

In addition to these rooms there will be four bedrooms on this floor, and in the basement will be a billiard room, baths, lavatories, and kitchen, which will complete the accommodation which is to be provided in the institute for the present. The walls of the one-story building to be erected within the next few weeks will be sufficiently strong to bear three additional stories whenever it is found necessary to add to the accommodation afforded in the immediately-planned building.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S TRIP.

Hon. W. J. Bowser and Hon. W. R. Ross Leave for North Via Edmonton on Thursday Next.

If his present plans are carried out the attorney-general, Hon. W. J. Bowser, will leave on his proposed tour of the province on Thursday. He intends to go round by way of Calgary and Edmonton, entering the province again by the Grand Trunk Pacific.

He will proceed slowly along the line of the transcontinental railway stopping at McRidge, Fort George, Fort Fraser, Smithers, Hazelton and Prince Rupert to address meetings. The attorney-general will be accompanied by the minister of lands, Hon. W. R. Ross, and they will, according to an inspired statement, "ascertain the views of the people on matters of local importance."

These have been expressed during the past few months pretty freely at meetings and in the form of resolutions regarding public matters, such as the failure of the provincial police to capture bank robbers on two occasions at Hazelton, and the toleration of blind pigs in the northern district, some of them run by men who are or were at the time in the provincial police.

In political circles it is rumored that this trip is part of a preliminary campaign by the attorney-general in prospect of his early succession to the premiership of British Columbia.

The only way to settle the labor unrest and strife now everywhere apparent, and to establish industrial peace in England would be to close the house of commons for five years, lock the doors, throw the key into the Thames, and stop the publication of newspapers for the same period.—Colonel Mark Lockwood, M. P.

TRIAL OF THE PYX

AN ANCIENT CUSTOM

Weight and Fineness of Canadian Coins Minted Last Year Tested

One of the ancient ceremonies at the royal mint is the trial of the pyx, which takes place about once every three years. In the branch mint at Ottawa the same ceremony takes place annually, and the trial of the pyx containing specimens of the coins minted during 1913 was held recently.

The pyx is a box in which is placed from time to time a certain number of coins out of every mintage during the year. The trial is in the hands of three goldsmiths, who select some of the coins from the pyx and test them for weight and fineness of the metal. There is a statutory limit of remedy as to weight and of departure from the standard of fineness set up by the trial plates kept in the department of finance.

The trial this year took place at Ottawa on May 5, the judges being A. Stansfield, William Nicol and W. H. Ellis, who were sworn in before the junior county court judge of Carleton county, Hon. R. D. Gunn, previous to entering upon their duties. Their report to the minister of finance is a bare recital of the things they did and the results of their findings, but as it is a description of what the trial of the pyx is it may be given in full. The judges say:

"We ascertained that the coins in each packet produced to us corresponded as to denomination and number with the endorsement on the respective packets, and we took one coin from each of such packets of gold coins amounting altogether to seventeen ten dollar pieces and seven five dollar pieces. We weighed each of the said coins separately for remedy as to weight prescribed in the schedule of the Currency Act, 1910. We found that the amount of variation from the standard of weight specified in the said schedule to the said act was plus one thousandth of an ounce on the whole of such coins."

"We then melted the said gold coins so taken out and weighed into an ingot and assayed such ingot comparing it with the pure gold trial-plate produced by the deputy minister of inland revenue so as to ascertain whether the metal was within the remedy as to fineness prescribed in the said schedule to the said act and we found that the amount of variation thereof from the standard of fineness specified in the said schedule to the said act was minus sixteen hundred thousandths and that therefore the said metal was within the prescribed remedy as to fineness."

"We weighed the residue of the said gold coins in bulk and we ascertained that they were within the remedy as to weight."

"We then took from such residue three ten-dollar pieces and three five-dollar pieces and weighed and assayed them separately and we found that such ten-dollar pieces weighed respectively: The first 257.94 grains; the second 257.89 grains; the third 258.14 grains, and that such five-dollar pieces weighed respectively: 'the first 128.95 grains; the second 129.05 grains; the third 129.14 grains."

"We then assayed the said gold coins separately and we found the millesimal fineness of such ten-dollar gold pieces to be: The first 899.94; the second 900.03; the third 899.91; and the millesimal fineness of such five-dollar gold pieces to be: the first 899.88; the second 899.90; and the third 900.09."

"After the same manner we selected one coin from each packet of silver coins, amounting altogether to four fifty-cent pieces, seventeen twenty-five cent pieces, seventeen ten-cent pieces and twenty-six five-cent pieces."

"We weighed each of the said silver coins separately for remedy and ascertained that they were within the remedy as to weight prescribed in the schedule of the Currency Act, 1910. We found that the amount of variation from the standard of fineness specified in the said schedule to the said act was nothing on the whole of such coins."

"We then melted the said silver coins so taken out and weighed, into an ingot and assayed such ingot comparing it with the pure silver trial-plate produced by the deputy minister of inland revenue so as to ascertain whether the metal was within the remedy as to fineness prescribed in the said schedule of the said act, and we found that the amount of variation thereof from the standard of fineness specified in the said schedule to the said act was minus one ten-thousandth and that therefore the said metal was within the prescribed remedy as to fineness."

"We weighed the residue of the said silver coins in bulk and we ascertained that they were within the prescribed remedy as to weight."

"We then took from such residue of silver coins two fifty-cent pieces, two twenty-five-cent pieces, one ten-cent piece and one five-cent piece and weighed and assayed them separately, and we found that such fifty-cent pieces weighed respectively: The first 180.11 grains; the second 179.42 grains; and that such twenty-five-cent pieces weighed respectively: the first 90.00 grains; the second 90.08 grains, and that the ten-cent pieces weighed 35.86 grains and that the five-cent piece weighed 17.98 grains."

"We then assayed the said coins separately and we found the millesimal fineness of such fifty-cent pieces to be: The first 924.9; the second 925.2; and the millesimal fineness of such twenty-five-cent pieces to be: the first 923.3; the second 924.3; and the millesimal fineness of the ten-cent piece to be 924.2; and the millesimal fineness of the five-cent piece to be 924.0."

THE IRISH SISTERS.

By Maura O'Neill.

I—NEVER MARRIED.

My mother had three daughters, an' the oldest one was me, Or what 'ud bring the childer to the fore?"

"Tis well for them that likes it, but by all that I could see, It 'ud never fit meself, an' there's the truth."

Oh, never think I'm wantin' to miscall the race o' men, There's na'er a taste o' harm in them, The cratures! They're meddlesome, an' quarrelsome, an' troublesome—but then The man above he put it in their natures."

I'd never be uncivil, shure an' marriage must be right, Or what 'ud bring the childer to the fore?"

Wid their screchin' an' their roarin' an' balorin' day an' night— Me sister Ann has five an' Jane has more."

I couldn't work wid childer, an' the men's a bigger kind, But maddy and mischievous like the men, Ye've got to larn them better, an' ye've got to make them mind, An' ye've got to keep them alay after all."

I'm better doing w' dumb things, a weeny blackface lamb, Or the yellow goosey-goosings on the knee, The neighbors think I'm sensible w' sick ones, so I am— Sure 'twas me that saved the life of Mullin's cow."

Aye ye'll often hear them say a woman cannot bide her lone, An' it's fifty years alone that I have known— They're very apt to say no woman yet could guide her own— But them that God guides is well guided."

II.—THE MARRIED SISTER.

Brigid is a caution, shure. What's that it is, sister, then, Brigid MacIlroy? Caution or no caution, listen what I'm tellin' ye."

Childer, should ye nois there, faix there's no quellin' ye. Och, well, I've said it now this many a long day, 'Tis the quare pity of Brigid MacIlroy. An' she that was the beauty, an' never married yet!"

An' fifty years gone over her, but do ye think she'll fret? Sorra one of Brigid, that's not the sort of her, Ne'er a hurt would she care though not a man had thought of her; Heaps o' what she might 'a' had—Here, get out of that, Mick, ye rogue! destroyin' o' the poor ould cat."

Ah, no use o' talkin'! Shure, a woman's born to wed, An' not go wastin' all her life by waitin' till she's dead. Haven't ye the men to mind, that couldn't for the lives o' them Keep their right end upmost, only for the wives o' them? Stick to yer pipe, Tim, an' give me no talk now!"

There's the door foreneth ye, man; out ye can walk now. Brigid, poor Brigid, will never have a child, An' she ye'd think a mother born, so gentle an' so mild— Danny, is it puttin' little Biddy's eyes out ye're after, Swishin' wid yer rod there, an' splittin' wid yer laughter?"

Come along, the whole of ye, in out of the wet. But the goodness grant patience, for I need it wid that man."

What was I sayin' then? Brigid lives her lone, Ne'er a one about the house, quiet as a stone— Lave a-go the pig's tail, boys, an' quiet the squeallin' now; Mind, I've got a sally switch that only wants the peellin' now— Ah, just to think of her! 'deed and well-a-day, 'Tis the quare pity o' Brigid MacIlroy."

ELOPES WITH A CHAUFFEUR.

After despatching offers of marriage made by several wealthy men, Miss Naomi Noland, the niece and adopted daughter of Mr. Robert H. Ingersoll, the millionaire watch manufacturer of New York, eloped with a young chauffeur named Liberty, and married him. Though her uncle threatens to disinherit his niece, she refuses to leave her husband.

Mr. Ingersoll, in an interview, said, "We have told her that we would sit up till midnight keeping the doors and our hearts open for her. If I do not hear from her and she does not come back, then I will consider her lost for ever. I will have nothing to do with her after that."

In order to replace the runaway niece Mr. Ingersoll declares that he will adopt a whole household of needy, unhappy youngsters, and try to make them happy."

PITHY PARAGRAPHS

A New Yorker tells of his sojourn at a certain hotel in the Carolina mountains. At about 3 o'clock in the morning he was aroused from a sound slumber by knocking on his door. "What is it?" he shouted. "Telegram to you, boss," replied the nigger on the other side of the door. "Will you open the door?" The New Yorker was angered by this. "I will not!" he yelled back. "Can't you slip it under the door?" "No, boss," was the response; "it's on a tray."

In the course of one of his lecture trips, Mark Twain arrived at a small town. Before dinner he went to a barber's shop to be shaved. "You're a stranger," asked the barber. "Yes," Mark Twain replied. "This is the first time I've been here." "You choose a good time to come," the barber continued. "Mark Twain is going to read and lecture to-night. You'll go, I suppose?" "Oh, I guess so." "Have you bought your ticket?" "Not yet." "But everything is sold out. You'll have to stand." "How very annoying!" Mark Twain said, with a sigh. "I never saw such luck. I always have to stand when that fellow lectures."

Charles Dickens, like Hugo, Campbell, and others, was particular about the placing of his comma, and one can understand such precision when recalling what a hash a misplaced point can make in an author's meaning. At a women's dinner recently one of the toasts ran, "Woman! without her man is a brute"; but the compositor, cynical and married, perhaps, set it up as "Woman, without her man, is a brute."

They debate some weighty things in congressional committees. The committee on post-holes is in session, and, as its members have nothing whatever to do with that institution, they are discussing the Panama canal. A naval expert from the interior addresses the chair. "Mistah chairman, I am informed that the bottoms of ships plying in salt water collect large quantities of barnacles. I believe—ah—that I am correct in this assumption." General assent. "I am further informed, mistah chairman, that upon coming into contact with fresh water these barnacles immediately become loosened, and that is to say, detached. To speak briefly, when vessels from either ocean enter the fresh water of the canal all their barnacles will drop off." No dissent. "What's the idea?" finally inquires a plain business man who happens to be in congress. "Well, won't these constantly dropping barnacles have a tendency to fill up the canal?"

A story of the Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, which is topical just now, was told recently by the Rev. Mark Guy Pearse. Only once, he said, did he regret that he was associated with Hugh Price Hughes. It was in the north of Ireland, where he had gone for a holiday. On the Sunday he was asked to preach in a chapel two or three miles from where he was staying. He preached the sermon, and afterwards asked the principal man there, the steward, if he were going to give him some dinner. The steward hesitated, and then said: "I am very sorry, sir, but it's my wife. She says she won't let you set foot inside the door because you were mixed up with Hugh Price Hughes, and he's a home ruler. He replied that the wife was a home ruler, too, evidently—but the steward did not see the joke."

The Reverend Bascom Anthony, a presiding elder of the Methodist church in Southern Georgia, tells a story of a negro pastor down his way who failed to give satisfaction to his flock. A committee from the congregation waited on him to request his resignation. "Look here!" demanded the preacher. "What's de trouble wid mah preachin'? Don't I argufy?" "You sho does, eldah," agreed the spokesman. "Don't I 'spitify concernin' de Scriptures?" "You suttinly does," admitted the other. "Den what's wrong?" "Well, eldah," stated the head of the committee, "hit's dis way: You argufies and you 'spitifies, but you don't show wherein!"

FOUGHT WITH LORD ROBERTS

Veteran of Crimean War and Indian Mutiny Suffered Horribly With Rheumatism, Until "Fruit-a-tives" Brought Welcome Relief

GEORGE WALKER, ESQ.

Chatham, Ont., April 3rd, 1913.

"I am a veteran of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, volunteering from the Royal Artillery into the Royal Engineers, and served under Lord Roberts during the Indian Mutiny, and am a pensioner of the British Government. Fierce hand-to-hand fighting and continual exposure, left me a great sufferer from Rheumatism, so much so that my legs swelled up, making it impossible for me to walk. My bowels were so constipated that I only had one passage a week until I got to using 'Fruit-a-tives.' They cured me of both the Constipation and Rheumatism. To-day, my bowels move immediately after breakfast, and in my regular employment I walk thirty miles a day and enjoy perfect health. No more Rheumatism or Constipation."

"You are at perfect liberty to publish this letter and my photo if it will be advantageous to 'Fruit-a-tives.'"

GEO. WALKER."

This letter of Mr. Walker tells how to cure Rheumatism, but does not tell WHY "Fruit-a-tives" cures this trouble. Rheumatism is the result of poisoned blood, due to weakness or faulty action of the bowels, kidneys or skin. In Mr Walker's case, Rheumatism was the result of excessive Constipation. Waste matter remained too long in the system, was absorbed by the blood and inflamed the nerves and membranes in his legs. When he started to take "Fruit-a-tives," these tablets immediately acted on the liver. More bile was given up to move the bowels. As the bowels were cleaned, the poisonous waste matter was removed, the blood became clear and the nerves were no longer irritated. To-day, Mr. Walker is enjoying vigorous health that was his when he fought with Lord Roberts and helped to plant the British flag firmly in our Over-Sea Possessions. He is as active as a man of forty and cannot praise "Fruit-a-tives" too highly. Try them yourself, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c, at all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A Sure 25% Saved on Tires

18 makes of tires now sell above Goodyear prices. Half of them sell about one-third higher. As between them and Goodyears, you are sure of one saving—right at the start—of 25 per cent.

Arrogant Prices

The evidence is that Goodyear tires are the best tires built today. They outsell any other. And they won that place by millions of mileage tests.

If that is so, an extra price means simple arrogance. Or it is used to infer an extra quality, which doesn't and cannot exist. Or it is forced by limited, high-cost production.

None of those reasons warrants you in paying the higher prices.

Our Latest Saving

Price is our latest saving. For years we worked solely to increase the Goodyear mileage. No-Rim-Cut tires then cost you more than others.

We reached the present-day limit in good tires, then turned our efforts to reducing cost. Now No-Rim-Cut tires cost you half what they used to cost. Last year's reductions totaled 23%.

And many of the tires which once undersold us, cost you more than Goodyears now. One reason lies in the modern equipment and high efficiency of our great Bowmanville factory.

Things Others Lack

These four features of No-Rim-Cut tires are found in no others, whatever the price:

First, our No-Rim-Cut feature.

Second, our "On-Air" cure—done to save the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric.

Third, our patent method for combating tread separation.

Fourth, our All-Weather tread—our double-thick, resistless anti-skid, yet as flat and smooth running as a plain tread.

These are all costly features. One of them adds to our own cost immensely. Yet we offer them all in No-Rim-Cut tires, and no high-priced tire offers one of them.

If these facts appeal to you, ask your dealer to supply you Goodyear tires.

TO-DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

One hundred and fifty-five years ago to-day, June 27, 1759, Wolfe landed his army and began his preparations for the conquest of Quebec. The previous day the English fleet had anchored off the southern shore of the Isle of Orleans, within sight of the rocky throne where the ancient capital, a bit of feudal France transplanted to America, reared its battlements and spires and towers. Impregnable to human assault it seemed, but it did not daunt Wolfe. The first of the English troops were landed on the Isle of Orleans, and they had scarcely reached the shore when a furious storm of wind and rain burst upon them, driving several transports on the rocks. Some of the British troops saw in this rebuff from nature an ill omen, but Wolfe did not share their superstitions, and immediately began an address to the people of Canada, calling upon them to surrender. "We have a powerful armament," the young soldier wrote. "We are sent by the British king to conquer the province, but not to make war upon women and children, the ministers of religion, or industrious peasants. We lament the sufferings which our invasion may inflict upon you, but if you remain neutral we proffer you safety in person and property and freedom in religion. We are masters of the river; no succor can reach you from France. General Amherst, with a large army, assails your southern frontier. Your cause is hopeless, your valor useless. Your guilt has been guilty of great cruelties to our unprotected settlers, but we seek no revenge. We offer you the sweets of peace amidst the horrors of war. England, in her strength, will befriend you; France, in her weakness, leaves you to your fate." This appeal, of course, was futile. Few were inspired by the proffered "sweets of peace," and those few were deterred by Montcalm's threat of death for all who refused to help to repel the English. It was to be war, with the gallant Montcalm pitted against the brave and daring Wolfe, with a continent as the reward for the victor—war to the death for the great leaders and many of their soldiers.

FIRST THINGS

The "prophet," founder and first president of the Mormon church, Joseph Smith, was assassinated seventy years ago to-day. Mormonism was founded by Smith at Fayette, Seneca county, N. Y., in 1830. Smith alleged that he had been to the death of an angel to dig up golden plates on which the records of Mormon were alleged to be inscribed. In 1831 Smith and several hundred followers removed to Kirtland, O., and a little later they founded a settlement in Missouri. They were driven out of that state, and went to Illinois, where they founded the "holly city" of Nauvoo. A newspaper of the town printed an alleged exposure of Smith, and the plant of the paper was destroyed. Smith was blamed for this, and, after defying the militia for a time, Smith and his brother Hiram were arrested and lodged in jail at Carthage. On the night of June 27, 1844, a mob attacked the jail, overpowered the guard and shot the "prophet" and his brother. Brigham Young succeeded to the leadership and led the Mormons across the prairies and mountains to the "promised land" around Great Salt Lake.

HUMAN PROCESSION

Socialist, suffragist, optimist—these three "isms" all apply to Helen Adams Keller, the wonderful blind and deaf woman who has aroused the sympathy and admiration of the world by her triumph over apparently insurmountable difficulties. Miss Keller was born in Tuscumbia, Ala., thirty-four years ago to-day, June 27, 1880. In her veins flows some of the best blood in America, as she is descended on the paternal side from the distinguished Alexander Spotswood, who was colonial governor of Virginia, and through her mother is related to the Everetts and Adams families, who played so large a part in the history of New England.

Miss Keller is not only a suffragist, but a militant, and she believes that socialism offers the best solution for the economic ills which afflict human society. "Militancy will prevail in England," she predicted not long ago, "for it is the weapon of patriotism, being the only means left to the advocates of equal suffrage. I confess I have militant longings myself," she added, "and I would like to strike a blow, as well as to say a word, in this great cause."

In Los Angeles a few months ago Miss Keller enjoyed the greatest experience of her life, when for the first time in her memory she was able to hear sound. Deaf and blind from the age of nineteen months, Miss Keller had not since heard a sound until the high notes from "Die Walkure," sung by a grand opera prima donna, found a faint response in her auditory nerves. It is as an optimist that Miss Keller is most widely known and best loved. In her books and magazine articles she has preached the gospel of joy and love and brotherhood. From out her dark and silent world she has sent messages of good cheer which have served to inspire millions who have the full use of their senses. To young people in general, and college students in particular, she has addressed the following counsel in her book, "Out of the Dark."

"Fears and regrets have no place in the vocabulary of youth, whose spirit sets its white and shining wings toward the purple shores of the promised land. Be happy; talk happiness. Happiness calls out responsive gladness in the world without yours. Rebel against the hardness and injustice of things as much as you like. It is always well to keep your fighting edge keen to smite wrongs wherever you meet them. But never doubt the permanence and excellence of what is yet to be.

"The great enduring realities are love and service. Joy is the holy fire that keeps our purpose warm and our intelligence aglow. Work without joy shall be as nothing. Resolve to keep happy, and your joy and you shall form an invincible host against difficulties.

"Resolve . . . with an enlightened optimism to consecrate your education to the service of others. When your thoughts become pessimistic, when it seems as if all men were deafened by the tumult of trade, blinded by self-interest and greed, turn the pages of your history of England, and you will find that the ideas which shaped the Anglo-Saxon race were not mean or sordid. American history, too, is filled with heroes and martyrs who joyfully pushed aside ambition and gave their lives to the common weal. The world needs more of this spirit of service. There is still many a lost center of the sun of love and the light of truth have not shone."

Truly, "Out of the Dark" has come light.

Copernicus, Galileo, Kepler, Harvey and Isaac Newton were the original ideas which led to their great discoveries. We can learn from the Greeks the folly of the present day estrangement of humanism and science.—Professor Burnet.

SCRAP BOOK

Wasp's Disappearance at Sea Mystery Now a Century Old.

A mystery of the sea which has never been solved, and which must always remain an unwritten chapter of naval history, enshrouds the disappearance of the United States sloop-of-war Wasp a hundred years ago. The gallant vessel vanished from the face of the deeps and was heard of no more. Doubtless her rotting remains lie upon the ocean's floor, a tomb for all the brave men who shared her fate.

The Wasp—although she was not the first American warship of that name—was built at Newburyport and was launched early in 1814. She was a staunch and able craft, and a fine example of the workmanship of the Massachusetts shipbuilders of a century ago. She mounted twenty-two guns, and seemed, to her fond builders, to be equal to the task of living up to her name. It was on May Day, 1814, that the Wasp put out to sea on her first and final cruise.

To-morrow will mark the centenary of the birth of Frederick William Faber, the English hymn-writer, who wrote "Hark, hark, my soul," "O Paradise! O Paradise!", "There's a wideness in God's mercy," and other familiar hymns. He was long in the Anglican priesthood, but later in life he went over to the Church of Rome and voiced his new allegiance in many sacred songs of singular sweetness and spirituality. Faber died in the Oratory at Brompton in 1863.

OUR LETTER BOX

Letters for publication in Daily Times must be received at the Times Office not later than the day before the day of publication. When received later they will be held over until the following day.

While unobjectionable anonymous communications will be published, the name and address of every writer of such letters must be given to the editor.

OPTIMISM.

To the Editor: What makes a progressive city? Is it natural conditions, or is it luck, or is it because of the faith of the people who go to make up the whole; the amount of energy they possess and are willing to expend, pay or no pay? Now the man who won't do a turn unless he is sure he will be paid for it in full is like the man who lifting water from the well when the bell rung while he had the bucket half way up and let it fall back. He isn't worth a cent as the world goes. He only hangs on to be where he is, and is only in the way.

There are also men who are holy saints, who would play the wheel of fortune just once, you know, if they were sure it would stop at the right spot. There are two strong factors in building a city, shrewd, honest, level-headed men who can make many little things into a muckie, and the man who is not afraid to work. These two spirits are infectious.

Optimism is a great thing; Pessimism is the devil's music. Sure you must use judgment, sound business judgment, but for heaven's sake look aloft! When I go into a store and I am told, when I answer the first greeting, that times are awful dull; never seen them so bad; I call up all the wits I possess, for I am sure that chap is going to try to do me. They are nearly all frauds, those pessimists, who would eat a court plaster rather than let someone have the good of it without paying for it.

Now, really and truly, how many of us know what a beautiful city we have; what we owe to the wise forethought of many of those who have served the city well in the past. We all know of Beacon Hill, of the Gorge, of the Willows, of Cordova Bay; but how many of us know what a beautiful inland possession we have in and around Elk Lake? The lake is very well filled this year and looks well. It belongs to the city; also the foreshore. In addition, the city owns a large tract of land, part in meadow land, where they hope to make a golf course. Part of it is covered with timber. If the scrub brush was cut out there would be one of the finest parks in the country. The whole city could go there for a picnic at one time and have room for golf. The Victoria and Sidney railway runs along the northwestern shore, with a station at either end, and no doubt would put one near the centre of or at the junction of Elk Lake proper and Beaver Lake, where a short bridge would connect with the south shore. ### THE JULY OUTING.

The July Outing is full of useful hints for vacationists.

"Dub Tennis for Tennis Dubs" is a practical article from the standpoint of the average player, giving sound advice for average players who never expect to be topnotchers.

"The Breast Stroke for All-Round Swimming," a short plea for the old breast stroke with some modifications. "The Road to Betatakin"—the first instalment of a two-part story describing the experiences of Mr. Oakison, the author, and a companion in visiting the cliff dwellings of Northern Arizona.

It is essentially a story of the trail, and is full of color and incident, in addition to giving a good picture of the desert and the canyon of the Southwest.

"The Massacre on Cedar Creek," a humorous story of a fishing trip in which the participants rode 75 miles in an automobile, and as the author expressed it, "courted death by sunstroke and tramped a path of pain through an alfalfa field."

"What Became of the Wild Pigeons," an article combating the popular belief that the wild pigeons were all killed by the market hunters. The author shows that this could not very well have happened, although he does not attempt to indicate what was the real cause of their disappearance—in fact he admits that he does not know.

In addition there are several articles containing useful information for the sportsman.

COWBOY COMPETITIONS

TO BE HELD AT FAIR

Broncho Busting and Steer Roping Contests Will Take Place Every Day

Broncho busting and wild horse racing will be a feature of the Dominion exhibition at Victoria this fall. The Agricultural Association has decided to leave in the hands of A. D. Keane, the B. C. champion cowboy, the arrangements for a series of cowboy sports to be held on the track every day during the fair. The provincial championships held at Minoru park, Vancouver, last year, will be held in Victoria this year instead, and the visitors to the fair will be assured of one of the most exciting competitions known.

A. D. Keane will leave for the upper country Tuesday to gather together a number of the finest riders in the province. He will get about 15 men and women, and will bring them to both Vancouver and Victoria fairs. They will give demonstrations of broncho riding, roping and will indulge in cowboy sports generally. The wild horse race will be one of the most popular events. The championship events will be held in Victoria.

Mr. Keane is himself the champion of the province and will defend his title against all the best riders from the British Columbia riders are the best in the world because of the rough nature of the country in which they learn to ride.

Mr. Keane has become a familiar figure in Victoria during the past month because of his ceaseless activities with the Capital Film Company's moving picture camera. Moving picture photography is his profession and wild horse riding his favorite sport. The Capital Film Company has been granted the exclusive picture rights at the fair. A splendid series of films showing the various sports will be shown in the city during the fair, and the camera will be busy all over the grounds taking pictures of the outstanding events of the fair. The pictures will be shown all over the province, and the best of them will be sent to the various fairs through the agency of the various film exchanges.

Pictures of the cowboy sports will certainly be taken and will be sent everywhere. The fact that they are held in Victoria will prove one of the finest advertisements the city could have, as the exhibition of horsemanship will be above anything which can be shown in any other part of the world.

ITEMS FOR MONDAY

Council Will Consider Store-Closing Measure and Directors For Jubilee Hospital.

Most important of the matters which will be brought before the attention of the city council on Monday evening will be the proposed by-law to regulate the hours of the closing of stores. This latest by-law, which passed its second reading on Monday last, provides for the closing of stores compulsorily at 6 p. m. except on Saturdays, Sundays, and public holidays. Each of the two weeks before Christmas. Four trades are proposed to be exempted, drug stores, confectioners, fruit stands, and dairies.

Alderman McCandless, chairman of the health committee, who has charge of the measure, said to-day that he hopes to see the principle carried on Monday, believing that it will have general approval. As one who carried on business on Johnson street for many years, he did not think there was the hardship which the deputations from that thoroughfare had urged when waiting on the streets committee yesterday.

As to the submission of a referendum, which it is stated the Retail Employees' organization desires, this would come at the annual election, which is a long time yet.

The appointment of five directors of the Royal Jubilee hospital will be made at the meeting on Monday. Last week the appointments were postponed in order that the annual meeting of donors of the hospital might be held first.

The meeting has now taken place without any choice of directors being made, and the council will proceed to select its five members independent of the action of the other meeting. It is the customary practice to make the selection at the last meeting of the city council in June.

So far very few meetings of civic committees have been arranged for next week. With the holiday intervening in the middle, the week promises to be a quiet time in civic matters.

One of the features of Thursday's annual meeting of the hospital subscribers was the appearance of William C. Ward, who was an original director general incorporation in 1890. Mr. Ward is on a visit to Victoria. Alexander Wilson was the only man in the room who served with him on the original board.

Third Troop Camp.—The boys of the third troop, boy scouts, are going into camp on Saturday next on the Hudson's Bay property near Craigflower bridge. They will remain there for two weeks, under the supervision of Scoutmaster H. R. Seife and the assistants of his troop. Patrol Leader Herbert Brown will act as quartermaster and Patrol Leader Hal Woolson as his assistant. Every provision is being made for the comfort and health of the lads, who are all looking forward to the fortnight.

Cecelia Road Tank.—The tank at Cecelia road for the northwest sewer system is rapidly approaching completion. The concrete of the walls is maturing and the forms will be ready to be moved shortly. It has been made specially strong in order that the roadway above may be safe after a heavy filling of earth is put in position at the time of improving road.

DIES AT EARLY AGE.—Mrs. A. Howell Had Wide Circle of Friends in City; Was 28 Years Old.

General regret is felt at the premature death of Mrs. Eva Elizabeth Howell, the young wife of Alfred Howell, of this city, at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McLaren, 404 Linden avenue. Her death took place last evening.

Mrs. Howell was born in Mitchell, Ontario, 28 years ago, and came to Victoria six years ago. Previous to that time she resided at Souris, Manitoba, and was widely known, and highly esteemed, throughout the city, where she had a large circle of friends, as she had also in Souris. News of her early death will be a great shock to all who knew her.

The funeral, which is being arranged by the Sands Funeral Furnishing company, will be announced later.

Mr. Howell will receive the sympathy of very numerous friends in Victoria.

FIGHTING IN PARIS

Negro Has Best of Heavy Championship Fight for Eight Rounds

Paris, France, June 27.—French sportsmen, and thousands of other followers of boxing gathered here to-day awaiting the fight for the world's heavyweight championship.

Frank Moran, of Pittsburg, white challenger, and Jack Johnson, holder of the world's title, will meet in the ring of the great Velodrome d'Hotel at 10.30 o'clock to-night to fight 20 rounds under the Marquis of Queensbury rules.

Johnson, who will receive $30,000 for his share, win, lose or draw, states that he was never so sure of winning a fight in his life, while the white challenger expresses great confidence. The betting is 3 to 1 in favor of Johnson.

Velodrome d'Hotel, June 27.—Johnson narrowly escaped arrest for speeding as he was coming from Asnières to the Velodrome in an automobile. The champion was detained by the police, but finally was allowed to proceed after being given a warning.

Arriving at the Velodrome, Johnson was given a great cheer by the crowd massed outside. Moran, who appeared shortly afterwards, was accorded a similar ovation.

Tom Kennedy, Willie Lewis and George Considine were in Moran's corner. Tom Flanagan and several negro trainers with James Pratt as timekeeper, were in Johnson's corner.

Before entering the ring Johnson said he intended to fight straight Queensbury rules. He was informed that Moran would do the same. The French federation rules are a very slight modification of the Marquis of Queensbury rules.

Johnson entered the ring at 10.20 p.m. amid cheers. A great shout went up as Moran followed. The crowd gave Moran a better hand than Johnson.

Georges Carpentier, the French champion, the referee, was given an ovation.

Round One. Moran found an opening and landed first to stomach and head. Johnson succeeded in landing on Moran's jaw. They mixed it hard, Johnson landing on the Pittsburgher's stomach.

Round Two. Moran forced the fighting, but Johnson managed to get home a hard uppercut to the jaw. Moran, in return landed hard on Johnson's head. Johnson sent a light left hook to Moran's cheek.

Vienne, the manager of the fight, says the rules are those of the international boxing federation, which do not allow holding, and are a slight modification of the Queensbury rules.

Round Three. Johnson gave Moran several terrific uppercuts to the jaw, while Moran responded with several jolts to the negro's stomach. Johnson landed a hard jolt on Moran's eye, and followed with hard knocks on the body. Johnson crowded Moran, who stumbled against the ropes as time was called.

Round Four. Johnson drew first blood with a right to Moran's nose. The negro smiled confidently as he met Moran's attack. Both led at the same time. Each landed on the other's head without harm. Johnson landed on Moran's face as the gong sounded.

Round Five. Johnson appeared fresher and confident as the round began. Moran landed hard on Johnson's jaw, and the crowd cheered. Johnson retaliated with several blows to the body. Moran blocked several hard uppercuts, and landed lightly on the negro's solar plexus, which amused the crowd.

Round Seven. Moran landed several hard ones to the negro's head, while Johnson got in a hard one to the stomach. Johnson landed a swift left to Johnson's chin, being made, and the council will proceed to select its five members independent of the action of the other meeting. It is the customary practice to make the selection at the last meeting of the city council in June.

Round Eight. Johnson followed his old style of fighting on the defensive. He succeeded in putting three uppercuts to the Pittsburgher's jaw. In a clinch Moran pounded Johnson's stomach, landing five or six blows and blocked more uppercuts from the negro. Johnson landed a hard right to the jaw. Both fighters did fine work.

Too Much Chilled Meat. Prominent Alberta Livestock Man Says Australian Importations Have Injured Market.

"The importation of chilled meat from Australia has impaired the market for Alberta cattle in British Columbia this spring," declared L. Walters, president of the Alberta Cattle Breeders' association to a reporter of the Times this morning. Mr. Walters, with his wife and child, is paying a few days' visit to the coast and is staying at the Empress hotel. His home is in Lacombe where the Dominion government experimental farm is situated.

"British Columbia has always been our best outside market because of its proximity, but this spring the demand has been much lighter than heretofore. Prices have improved since the first of May, however."

"Exportation to the old country has almost entirely ceased. The cattle deteriorate on the journey and there never was much money in it. The practice of sending roo sters to

NEVILLE BEAT FORMER CHAMPION FIRST ROUND

Seattle, June 27.—Jack Neville, the California champion, set a new record for the links of the Seattle Golf club with 69, and beat H. Chandler Egan, of Medford, Ore., in four down at the end of the first round of eighteen holes in the Pacific Northwest championship finals to-day. It was a tremendous advantage the Californian held, but the wonderful recuperative powers of the former national champion were what his friends were counting on for a reversal of the order before the last half of the match was finished.

Egan was putting badly, and every missed putt cost him something, for Neville was not making a single mistake.

When Egan missed a putt at the thirteenth hole, he missed his chance for a squared match. He had been one down at the turn, had lost the tenth, and won the twelfth. ## FOREIGN BUYING IS SUSTAINING FACTOR

Claffin Failure Regarded as Local Issue Only on New York Exchange

(By F. W. Stevenson &amp; Co.)

New York, June 27.—Continuance of domestic short covering in the list, gave a higher range and foreign buying proved a sustaining factor for the short session. Sentiment was bettered by vague assurances to the effect that the Claffin affair is likely to be local rather than general in its influence.

With the new currency system in working order many look for a period of expansion and inflation as a result of the huge amount of commercial paper which will then be available as a basis of circulation.

There were sales of Pitt Meadows Oil, a property in the proximity of Vancouver of which the first lot of 100,000 shares treasury stock is now selling.

Slight easing in Prudential reflected lack of immediate buying power, but sellers would not reduce their offerings below the dollar and a half mark.

Sales in Union Pacific for the day reached as high as 75c and Trenton hunched perceptibly.

Other than oil issues were without much feature.

REALIZING OF SHORTS

GAVE WHEAT AN UPTURN

(By F. W. Stevenson &amp; Co.)

Chicago, June 27.—Considerable commission house buying and general short covering of lines put out higher up, gave wheat its strong tone this morning.

The rally was roughly one cent up from the low point of yesterday, or a half cent from last night's close.

There was a fractional reaction to the news of the fall.

The news file recorded no change in the character of reports. A heavy rain is now expected. Liverpool was lower.

Estimate on the Kansas crop has been raised from 130,000,000 to 170,000,000 bushels.

Latest reports from harvesting in all of the big states tributary to Chicago were most favorable.

Buying of corn and a consequent upturn of nearly two cents, was no fears of no rain over Sunday, where badly needed.

Wheat reacts on both markets; advance made

Winnipeg, June 27.—Wheat prices reacted to-day on the local and American markets, Minneapolis leading. Excessive rains in the northwest states causing probable damage, and good flour sales at Minneapolis, brought about the advance in the market. Lower Liverpool cables and continental markets checked the advance. The volume of business was light. Light rains have occurred in Manitoba and heavy rains in Qu'Appelle valley and parts of northern Saskatchewan and northern Alberta. Trading in cash grains was dull and quiet. Inquiry for Nos. 1 and 2 northern wheat and for low grade oats to fill space being all that was wanted by exporters.

Receipts of wheat are being taken up by local millers for cash. Oats are on to the lake terminal. Owing to storms in the south causing wire troubles, news was scarce.

ALBERTA ASSOCIATED FEATURE IN OIL LIST

Athabasca Still Climbed and Sales in Pitt Meadows Oil of B. C.

(By F. W. Stevenson &amp; Co.)

Notable strength was recorded in Alberta Associated this morning, and although sales were only minor, same were at a high level, and there was no stock going below 47.

There were sales of Pitt Meadows Oil, a property in the proximity of Vancouver of which the first lot of 100,000 shares treasury stock is now selling.

Slight easing in Prudential reflected lack of immediate buying power, but sellers would not reduce their offerings below the dollar and a half mark.

Sales in Union Pacific for the day reached as high as 75c and Trenton hunched perceptibly.

Other than oil issues were without much feature.

TO WELCOME TEACHERS

Principals of City Schools Assemble to Arrange for Monday's Proceedings.

Several of the principals of the Victoria city schools met in the office of the inspector of schools this morning to discuss the arrangements for the reception of the teachers from Oakland, California, who will pass through on Monday en route from the south to the great teachers' gathering at St.
Paul next month.

In the party will be from twenty-five to thirty-five teachers, and they will arrive at an early hour on Monday morning. Opportunity will be given for breakfast, then at about 9 o'clock the automobiles and vehicles, which have been lent for the occasion, will assemble at the Empress hotel to take the party for a run round the city and environs. The next hour and a half will be occupied in that fashion.

At 10.30 a return is to be made to the parliament buildings, where Hon. Dr.

Young, minister of education, and the superintendent of education, Dr. Alexander Robinson, will receive the visitors.

At 11.30 the visitors will be taken by motorboats to the Gorge, where lunch will be served by Mrs. Jenner in the Japanese tea gardens. The party will return from the Gorge in time to take the afternoon boat for Vancouver.

The committee of principals, together with Mrs. Jenkins and Inspectors May and Paul was named at the last meeting of the teachers' institute to take up the matter, and arrange to entertain the visiting teachers. This committee would like as many of the local teachers as can make it convenient to be present at the reception at the parliament buildings.

APPRECIATE WELCOME

Japanese Admiral Says City's Function
Was Best of Present Cruise.

The accompanying letter has been received by Mayor Stewart from Vice-Admiral T. Kuroi, dated from Tacoma on the arrival of the Asama and Azuma in that port. From the letter it appears that the smoking concert at the drill hall was received with greater satisfaction than any other function organized in the honor of the visitors.
Imperial Japanese Training Squadron

Flagship Asama,
Tacoma, June 25, 1914.
His Worship Alex. Stewart,
Mayor of the city of Victoria, B. C.
Dear Sir: I am taking this opportunity to express to you, and through you to the city over which you are taking the lead, my hearty thanks in the name of myself and the men of the squadron under my command, for the warm welcome and sincere hospitality extended to us during our stay in your port.

I am very happy to say that it is a common voice among our men this morning that they have never experienced such a delightful entertainment as the smoking concert given by your city since they left Japan for the present cruise, and that we shall always retain a very agreeable recollection of our visit to the city of Queen.

With assurance of my highest consideration, I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) T. KUROI,
Vice-Admiral.

MANY WILL GO

Victorians Will Visit Bellingham on July 4 in Aid of Seamen's Institute Building Fund.

Present indications are that many Victorians will go on the excursion to Bellingham on the afternoon of July 4, leaving Victoria at 2 o'clock, and arriving at Bellingham about three hours later. The return trip will be made at 8 o'clock, in order to get back to the city about 10.30, which will provide all with plenty of time to catch cars for the outlying parts of the city if they wish to do so.

The excursion should be one of the most delightful of the kind ever organized for the benefit of Victorians. The Princess Patricia, which has been chartered for the occasion, is the only regular excursion steamer in these waters, and has ample deck room, plenty of seats, and good speed. Bellingham, being a city of the United States, will be in holiday attire, and the arrival of the Patricia will be one of the events of the day. The route of the steamer is through the sheltered waters of the San Juan Straits, and in the course of the trip Friday Harbor and Anacortes will be seen in the distance.

Leaving at the hour it does, everyone will have time to take luncheon before catching the boat, and there will be ample time for a later meal in Bellingham, where the passengers will have three full hours to amuse themselves in. By patronizing the excursion Victorians will give themselves an afternoon and evening of real pleasure, and will, at the same time, be assisting a worthy charity, as the proceeds will go to the Seamen's Institute building fund.

VENERABLE MINISTER CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Rev. Dr. John Reid is 84 Years To-day; Had Varied Experience as Pastor

To-day Rev. Dr. John Reid, sr., who came to Victoria nearly 34 years ago, celebrates his eighty-fourth birthday, and the heartiest of congratulations are extended to the venerable Presbyterian minister by his numerous friends in the city and elsewhere.

Dr. Reid was born in Kilmarnock on June 27, 1830, receiving his early schooling in that town, and later going to Glasgow, where he was trained for the ministry. In 1849 he was ordained at Cambuslang, where he ministered in the Congregational church while the father of Dr. David Livingstone was one of the members of the church.
Avon Bridge next provided him with a pastorate, and from there he went to Jedburgh, Dumfries, and Cathrine, Ayrshire, successively. At Troutbeck Congregational church, Windermere, where he went in 1860, he met many famous men, among the friends he made there being the famous Spurgeon, of Spurgeon's Tabernacle, London; and William Carver, founder of Carver's church, Windermere. He also met Dr.
Parker, another of the more famous of the Nonconformist ministers of London, Dr. Guthrie, of Edinburgh; Dr.
Raffles, of Liverpool, and Sir Francis Crosley, M. P., of Halifax. In 1867
he was called to Manchester Road Congregational church, Burnley, Lancashire, where he remained for twelve years, only resigning his pastorate when failing health forced him to do so.

It was at this time that he came, on the advice of his friends, to the Pacific coast, where his first work consisted in reorganizing the First Presbyterian church. In 1880 he went to San Francisco for a six months' visit, and the following year he returned for four years to take charge at Burnley, England. Later he came back to Victoria, and assisted Bishop Cridge at the Reformed Episcopal church here and at New Westminster, retiring about fifteen years ago after long and honorable ministry.

He has three sons and one daughter living, fourteen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A college youth just returned from a hunting trip called one evening on the lady then brightest in his many-flamed sky. During a lull in the chatter he proffered a request for what was once
"a chase salute." "Jack," she said, "if you kiss me, I'll tell dad." Jack lunged at the throat and pecked at the lady, whereupon she scurried upstairs, leaving the lad in considerable suspense. "Dad," she cooed timidly through the tobacco smoke, "Jack's downstairs just home from a hunting trip. He'd like to see that new gun of yours." "All right," grunted dad, and descended the stairs, gun in hand. Jack departed immediately—sans hat, sans overcoat, sans cane—and was seen no more.

PRESENTATION MADE TO PASTOR OF CHURCH

Congregation of St. Andrew's Celebrates 20th Anniversary of Dr. Clay's Pastorate

The annual social of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, held last evening, was marked by a presentation to Rev. Dr. Leslie Clay, on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of his pastorate at St. Andrew's. The presentation took the form of a pulpit gown and cassock, given, on behalf of the ladies' aid of the church, by Mrs.
McKillop and Mrs. Phillips. An address accompanied this, which congratulated Dr. Clay on his long sojourn with the congregation and expressed the thankfulness of his people for the manifold blessings which had come to the church during his pastorate. The address concluded with sincere wishes for the future happiness of Dr. and Mrs. Clay and their family.

Dr. Clay, who was obviously deeply moved by the appreciation shown in this gift, briefly thanked his congregation for their expressions of kindliness, and referred to the encouragement which he had been given in his ministry at St. Andrew's.

R. B. McMicking presided as chairman, and during the early part of the proceedings Rev. W. L. MacRae, who,
as pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, had the longest pastorate of any of the Presbyterian ministers in the city, gave a synoptical address in which he told the history of Presby-terianism in Victoria, and reviewed the events of the past twenty years in St.
Andrew's church. The congregation was the largest Presbyterian congregation in the city, there was a large membership, an efficient session and board of management, and all the usual working societies of the church were operating well.

Dr. Campbell also spoke, referring to the happy relations which had always existed between himself and Dr. Clay, while Hon. Abraham E. Smith, United States consul, speaking as a member of the congregation, told of his friendship with Dr. Clay in Moose Jaw before the Presbyterian minister had come to Victoria. He had met him in Victoria later, where the friendship had been continued, and he knew him both as a man and a preacher of the true Gospel.

During the services the choir gave a fine rendering of "The Glory of the Lord," Mrs. Macdonald Fahey singing
"The Lost Chord," and several of the leading vocalists in the choir giving the choral selection, "The King of Love." Afterwards the congregation repaired to the social parlors of the church, where delicious refreshments were served by the ladies and a pleasant social time enjoyed.

The height of the human figure is six times the length of the human foot.
Whether the form is slender or plump, the rule holds good on the average; any deviation from the rule is a departure from the beauty of proportion. It is claimed that the Greeks made all their statues according to this rule.
